Army Overthrows Machado, Held as Prisoner in Palace; Seizes Havana During Revolt

Island Executive Reported to Have Signed Request for Leave of Absence to Be Granted at Midday Today by Congress.

Action by President Follows Desertion By Party and Demand That He Resign

Military Concentration Camp Broadcasts Appeal to Public Not to Fear Disturbances; Successor Not to Be Army Man Nor Politician.

Havana, Cuba, Aug. 11 (U.P.).—A broadcast from the radio station at the Columbia Army Field shortly before midnight said that "Since one hour ago Gen. Gerardo Machado is no longer President of Cuba."

The broadcast came several hours after the army, which had supported Machado's regime for so long, deserted him and delivered an ultimatum that he leave office by noon tomorrow.

Machado was said to be virtually a prisoner at the presidential palace. Whether he had actually signed a request for a leave of absence, the method by which he is expected to leave office, was not definitely known.

The broadcast from Columbia Field, army concentration camp where Machado was given the ultimatum late in the afternoon, said: "Since one hour ago Gen. Machado is no longer President of Cuba. We guarantee that he who substitutes will not be an army man or a politician. The United States Ambassador (Sumner Welles) now is in accord with the opposition."

"At this moment the ambassador is conferring with army leaders, together with Col. Julio Sanguill. Disturbances of any nature must not be feared. Order is absolute. The army and the people will fraternize."

Deadline at Noon Today.

(Copyright 1933, by Associated Press.)

Havana, Aug. 11.—Cuban military forces, the army navy and flying corps, in a swift and bloodless revolution late today, demanded the resignation of President Gerardo Machado within 24 hours, climaxing demands by political leaders that the executive step down.

To give force to their demand the look potential of five strategic points in and about the city while awaiting the deadline they set—noon tomorrow. The 24 hours was figured from the actual beginning of the movement.

An appeal was made to the people to maintain tranquility, "since there will be no violence."

This dramatic development followed within a few hours advancement of a counter proposal by the president to demands from opposition forces that he leave office.

Counter Proposal.
Sumner Welles, United States ambassador, acting as mediator in attempts to solve this island republic's political turmoil, had made the first proposal to Machado that he resign and name a successor acceptable to all parties.

The president's proposal provided for his own retirement and the succession of Alberto Herrera, the secretary of war.

Deciding upon their program leaders of the movement informed Herrera by telephone of their demand. The president, summoning Herrera and others of his intimates, drove swiftly to Camp Columbia, where the demand was formally presented.

Congress Vote Case
Token to U. S. Court

New Orleans, Aug. 11 (U.P.).—Judge Wayne C. Borah in United States District Court today ordered Gov. O. K. Allen to show cause on August 17 why he should not call an election to fill the unexpired term of the late Representative Bolivar E. Kemp, of the sixth congressional district. The order was issued on the petition of E. M. Whitman, of Amite, an announced candidate for the office.

Myers Returning, Heavily Guarded

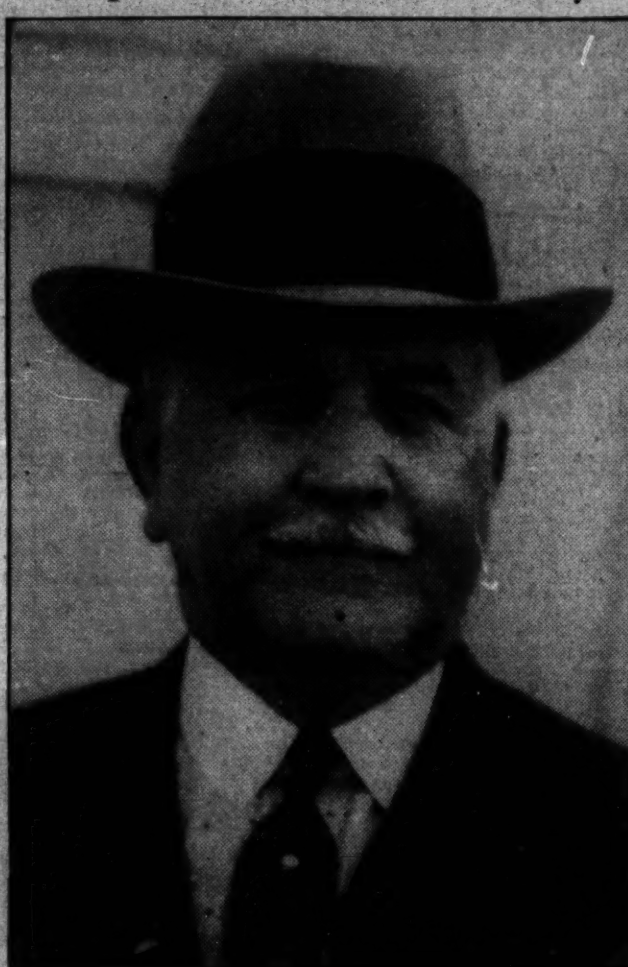

A group of four heavily armed Washington detectives, headed by Capt. B. W. Thompson, assistant chief of detectives, made a secret trip to Frederick, Md., late last night to return Ernest Myers, 30, wanted here in connection with the $9,000 robbery of the Washington Mechanics & Savings Bank in June, 1932.

Myers was arrested in Baltimore Wednesday and taken to Frederick, where he was identified by Harry Hewitt, of Thurmont, as one of the men who robbed the bank of $418 and 120 gallons of alleged whisky.

A warrant charging Myers with participation in the robbery was issued by United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage and taken to Frederick by the Washington detectives.

The trip was made late at night with the utmost secrecy, as Capt. Thompson feared an attempt to free Myers, said to be the member of a powerful Philadelphia gang. The detectives were armed with machine guns and sawed-off shotguns.

Proposed for Cuban Presidency

GEN. ALBERTO HERRERA, Cuban secretary of war, who, it is reported on high authority, has been proposed as President of Cuba by President Machado.

Stratosphere Craft Blows Up; 1 Killed

Brussels, Aug. 11 (U.P.).—One workman was killed and another was injured seriously today when the gondola of Max Cosyns' stratosphere balloon exploded while undergoing pressure tests.

The constructor of the gondola, M. Nacelle, was injured slightly. Cosyns, the young Belgian physicist who accompanied Prof. August Piccard into the stratosphere last summer, escaped injury.

The explosion occurred in the course of tests after repairs which it was hoped, would enable Cosyns to attempt the ascension, although it had been announced yesterday that the trial would not be made until spring.

Forestry Camps Will Close Oct. 1

Gradual Abandonment to Put Men in Regular Jobs to Be Goal.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

Hyde Park, N. Y., Aug. 11.—As he began his return trip to Washington from the summer White House, President Roosevelt took up plans tonight for the gradual abandonment of the conservation camps, beginning about October 1. At present there are 314,000 men enrolled in the camps.

The President believes that as employment opens up in the fall, as it has been opening during the last four months, many of the campers will voluntarily separate themselves from the Government camps. While in Washington next week he plans to take up with Gen. Hugh S. Johnson the establishment of machinery to connect the forest camps with employment opportunities.

Since there is no hope that all the camps can be abandoned before winter, plans also will be made next week to move some of the more northerly groups to milder climates. It is intended that before December all camps will be removed from the heavy snow belt to temperate winter climates.

To accomplish these transfers the President has set aside $25,000,000 for the purchase of new forest lands and Federal park reserves in Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Arkansas, Georgia and North Carolina.

Federal Prison Staff Jolted in Druggan Probe

Three Employees Dismissed and One Suspended at Leavenworth.

Special privileges found to have been extended to Terrance Druggan, Chicago beer baron, serving a term in Leavenworth Penitentiary, yesterday caused five months to be added to his sentence by a trial board and brought dismissal of three penitentiary employees, suspension of a deputy warden, and the censuring of a prison assistant warden.

The trial board, after hearing how certain employees had permitted the prisoner to drive a truck while serving as a trustee and to visit the City of Leavenworth, voted unanimously to take 150 days of good-behavior time from him. He will be transferred to the Atlanta Prison.

James A. Ordling, prison chaplain; Lester M. Wahler, a guard, and Vernon R. Swearingen, automobile mechanic, who admitted granting favors to the prisoners and who already were under suspension, were the employees dismissed.

Upon the request of the warden, who said he had lost confidence in his first assistant, the Department of Justice gave notice of suspension to Deputy Warden P. J. Kearney.

The splendid record of Warden Hudspeth as head of the prison annex, saved him from a more severe punishment than censure, it being felt that under him a recurrence of abuses was unlikely.

The Department of Justice sent a letter to all Federal prisons, cautioning them again against permitting favoritism or giving unearned privileges to prisoners.

F. D. Roosevelt, Jr., Visits Spanish Ruler

Madrid, Aug. 11 (U.P.).—Franklin Roosevelt, Jr., son of the American President, conferred for more than a half hour today with President Niceto Alcalá Zamora in the latter's palace. Young Roosevelt will leave Sunday for Toledo, and later will go to Seville and Granada.

He is the guest here of United States Ambassador Claude G. Bowers.

"Fighting Congressman" Kayos 6 Red Lanterns

The second battle for the cause of peaceful slumber wasn't caused by a party this time. It was the welding of street car rails outside Shoemaker's hotel room by a two-man repair crew. It was a hot night and the window of his fourth-floor bedroom stood wide open, admitting the hammer of drills and the flares of acetylene torches.

"I'll fight the whole bunch of you," Shoemaker shouted as he rushed to the street in his night clothing after the crew had failed to heed his warning. "I'm the fighting congressman."

Picking up a red lantern, he whirled it around his head and let it fly. It smashed on the pavement and went out. Encouraged, the Congressmen grabbed five others and, one-by-one, gave them the same treatment.

Patrolman Henry Méthé strolled by just as Shoemaker ran out of lanterns and took him to the station. After a talk with Sgt. John Albrecht, the representative was released to return to his room and the workmen, their six lanterns incriminated, quit work for the night.

Arrested in Home State After Encounter With Track Repairers.

Shoemaker, Again Battles for Right of Undisturbed Slumber.

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 11 (U.P.).—Representative F. H. Shoemaker's battles for the right of undisturbed slumber numbered two today, and the "fighting congressman" was the victor in both.

Shoemaker blackened the eye of a Washington, D. C., apartment house dweller several months ago because, he claimed, a nearby party was too noisy. Prosecution in that case finally was dropped.

Please, Can't You Help These Fired U. S. Dry Agents?

(By Staff Correspondent.)

Hyde Park, N. Y., Aug. 11.—"Who's that knocking at my door?" mused the folks of President Roosevelt's home town tonight. It wasn't Barnacle Bill the Sailor, but it was two stalwarts who brought news to Hyde Park. They said they were prohibition agents, fresh out of jobs, and were selling tickets to a dance.

The dance, they said, was to be a benefit shindig for unemployed prohibition agents. The Dutchess County dry office at Kingston had been closed.

That was the first Hyde Park had heard about it.

U. S. to Enforce Dry Law, 2 of Cabinet Assert

Farley and Cummings Tell of Effect of Order for Reorganization.

(Associated Press.)

From the Justice Department's reorganized Prohibition Bureau and from Postmaster General Farley came assertions yesterday that enforcement of the dry law would continue unabated as long as it is on the statute books.

While the radically shaken-up enforcement unit was readjusting itself under the Justice Department, Farley, an administration leader in the repeal movement, told newsmen:

"The prohibition law is in the statutes of the United States and will be there unless and until the eighteenth amendment is repealed. And as long as it is there the law will be and should be enforced."

300, Not 600, Dropped.

In the meantime, Attorney General Cummings, from his home at Greenwich, Conn., revealed that 800 employees of the enforcement bureau had been dropped. Officials here had estimated only 600 had lost their jobs.

As Cummings described the reorganization, President Roosevelt's executive order abolished both the Bureau of Investigation and the Prohibition Bureau. In their place was created immediately a "Division of Investigation."

Virtually all of the old Bureau of Investigation's employees had been rehired, Cummings explained, and the head of the bureau, J. Edgar Hoover, became chief of the new division. John S. Butler, assistant director of prohibition enforcement, was made his assistant.

As to Dalrymple.

Cummings had only this to say of the retirement of A. V. Dalrymple, director of the old Prohibition Bureau, who charged "double-crossing" on the part of some of his associates.

"The new set-up automatically eliminated the position formerly held by Maj. Dalrymple, who for that reason will no longer be connected with the Department of Justice."

Victim of Robber Starves in Woods

Strasburg, Va., Aug. 11 (U.P.).—Wandering alone in the thick undergrowth at the foot of the Massanutten Mountain, in Powell's Foot Valley, with an ugly wound in his head, dazed and emaciated from hunger, a man who said he was William Harry Byrd, of Black Mountain, N. C., was found by Sheriff Sheets today and brought to Woodstock for investigation and medical treatment.

Byrd told the officers that he had been driving a truck between Roanoke and Black Mountain and cut off all escape except by water.

Hundreds of small boats carried the panic-stricken refugees out into the bay, thence to outposts at a safe distance from the flames.

As the fire swept down on Burlington, destroying several buildings on the outskirts, inhabitants took to boats and moved to Nippers Harbor, 15 miles northeast.

The settlements of Middle Arm and Harbor Deep also were abandoned tonight and other communities were threatened. The last report from Middle Arm came late this afternoon, when the telegraph operator reported:

"Don't expect to be able to work much longer, as fire is now only a quarter of a mile or less away and coming fast."

Harbor Deep reported the fire was burning on the outside hills and near the shore. The villagers were removing household goods and it was considered probable the wireless station would be dismantled.

Italian Aviator Again Upside-Down Champion

Los Angeles, Aug. 11 (U.P.).—Flying with his landing gear turned skyward, Lieut. Tito Falconi, Italian royal air force, regained his upside-down flight championship today, only 24 hours after he had lost it to Milo G. Burcham, 30-year-old Long Beach, Calif., aviation instructor.

Falconi flew in an inverted position today for 2 hours 8 minutes 54 seconds. This is 21 minutes 53 seconds better than the record set yesterday by Burcham.

NRA Nearing Crucial Test Of Authority

Alabama Coal Operators Hurl Challenge; Illinois Milk Men File Suit.

Administration Victorious on Other Fronts; Shoe Strike Ended.

By J. Bernard McDonnell.

The stage was being set yesterday for a showdown between the National Recovery Administration program and recalcitrant business and industrial leaders.

Out of the welter of conflicting interests and economic beliefs which mark the coal industry came the direct threat of an effort to upset the recovery program.

Forney Johnston, representing the commercial coal industry of Alabama, flung the challenge. Operators he represented, he said, would go to court to upset any Administration decision which included them in a code they did not want.

Constitutionality of the recovery law was challenged in a suit filed in the District Supreme Court by Nugent Dadds and Neil Burkinshaw, former Assistant Attorneys General, on behalf of Illinois milk dealers.

Shoe Strike Settled.

Not all of the recovery sea was storm tossed, however. Secretary of Labor Perkins announced settlement of the spreading Massachusetts shoe strike. Beginning in Lynn, the strike had spread to Boston, Chelsea and was threatening in Brockton. Twelve thousand workers were involved.

The settlement agreement provides for prompt return of strikers to work and a 20 per cent increase in wages. It is to be approved by the strikers.

The National Labor Board was believed to have practically settled the strike of shirt workers in Pottsville, Pa. It was the second hearing by the board. Acting Chairman Leo Wolman announced at the end of the closed sessions that representatives of employers had been given time to consult their principals. A favorable reply is expected early next week.

Big Interests Urged to Agree.

Behind closed conference doors, the recovery machinery wheels were grinding, even if slowly, in an effort to reach agreement with dissenting leaders in the industries themselves as well as the disapproval by powerful interests of some of the provisions of the recovery law.

Brig. Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, recovery administrator, reiterated his determination to enforce the collective bargaining provision of the recovery law in the face of continued determined opposition of

Speeds Crime Drive

Joseph B. Keenan, special assistant to the Attorney General, who will appear in New York before the Senate committee investigating racketeering to pave the way for legislation speeding the administration's war against organized crime.

Hyde Park, N. Y., Aug. 11 (U.P.).—President Roosevelt is counting upon Eugene Black, of Atlanta, continuing as governor of the Federal Reserve Board.

Black resigned as governor of the Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta to take the leadership of the Federal Reserve System with the understanding it would be temporary.

However, Mr. Roosevelt is trying to get him to stay and is very hopeful that he will.

(Associated Press.)

Eugene B. Black yesterday told newsmen here he was willing to remain in his present position as long as officials felt there was work for him to do.

He explained, however, he was eager to return to his old job as governor of the Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta as soon as possible.

As to reports that James M. Cox, former Governor of Ohio, was in line to succeed him, Black said he knew nothing. He added, however, that Cox, 1920 Democratic presidential nominee, would make an excellent man for the job.

Early in the Roosevelt administration Cox declined the secretary of Ambassador to Germany.

After that, the opinion was expressed in high Democratic circles that he was not interested in a Government position.

H. Warner Martin, of Atlanta, was appointed yesterday as assistant to Black, to take office August 16.

Here's a Fish Story For the Best Anglers

Mountain Home, Ark., Aug. 11 (U.P.).—Anglers have been practicing for the lily pond recently constructed on the courthouse lawn.

Several bass and a number of bream occupy the pond. If one of the boys figures on going fishing he takes a few cracker crumbs and tips them into the lily pond. If the bass are striking, and he grabs his fyrod and hies to the river. If they don't come up to the cracker crumbs he stays at home.

Mine Under Guard After Two Are Hurt

Pickets Wound Men Going to Work; Troops Held in Readiness.

Clinton, Ind., Aug. 11 (U.P.).—Armed peace prevailed tonight at the Bunsen No. 4 mine near here, where two coal miners were wounded this morning as pickets ambushed the automobile in which they were driving to work.

Scattered pickets maintained their positions on the roads leading to the mine and a group of armed guards stood at the entrance to the company property.

At Indianapolis, Gov. Paul V. McNutt said National Guard troops were in readiness both at Fort Knox, Ky., and at Shaksam State Park to move in on the mine area if necessary arises. The governor said Elmer Straub, adjutant general of the guard, was receiving hourly reports of the situation.

Horse, Scared, Plunges Through Top of Auto

Boulder, Colo., Aug. 11 (U.P.).—"This," said A. J. Campbell here today, "was a horse on me."

Driving down Boulder Canon, a horse in a trailer behind Campbell's auto became frightened and jumped on top of the car.

The animal's hoofs broke the auto's top and the horse plunged through, injuring John Campbell, 2-year-old son, and inflicting a scalp wound on another passenger.

U. S. Has Plan Forcing City Crime Curbs

Federal Agents to Watch Leniency Granted Offenders.

Would Expose Officials' Laxity Through Press Bulletins.

By Charles Stevenson.

High Federal officials last night were evolving a plan to cudgel municipal governments into shattering their liaisons with gangsters by use of newspaper publicity and Justice Department agents.

It is aimed directly at New York, Chicago and other large cities where light sentences recently doled out to notorious criminals have engaged the attention of those having charge of the administration's newly declared war on gangsters.

The program, disclosed exclusively to The Washington Post, has been discussed at White House conferences. Present expectations are that it will be put to a test immediately in the event municipal authorities fail to cooperate with the Federal Government.

Under this plan, the activities of courts, prosecutors and police in every city will be closely watched by Washington authorities. If it appears they do not fully cooperate with the administration's crime drive, Justice agents will be dispatched to the lax enforcement areas.

Will Watch Police and Courts.

The agents, it is planned, will, much as private investigators, follow up on police, prosecutors and courts in their work. All details will be brought to the attention of Washington and combined in weekly bulletins, which will be turned over to the newspapers.

The bulletins will be addressed to the residents of the city, "one of the officials explained. "It might say: 'Fifteen holdups, a murder and 200 burglaries occurred in your city last week. In 90 per cent of the cases the crimes were committed by known criminals, yet in most of them local authorities failed to take proper action to stamp out crime. Police Magistrate Doe refused to hold Dead-Eye Mike for the grand jury despite the fact it is common knowledge he has served three terms in the penitentiary and cannot give a good reason for his satisfactory alibi in the Marion holdup case. John Loony, who was found guilty of burglary, got a suspended sentence, although in your neighborhood city, where law enforcement is extremely effective, he would have been sentenced to ten years.'

Such bulletins, published in the local newspapers, sponsors of the plan contend, would arouse such indignation that politicians conspiring with gangsters would reform through fear of their constituents.

The plan is being developed so the Government can push its war on crime without the necessity of establishing a Federal force to police municipalities. Such a police system, it is believed, would be too unwieldy and would lack the effectiveness of closely-knit local agencies cooperating with a Washington crime clearing house.

While the plan was being perfected, Joseph B. Keenan, special assistant to the Attorney General, who heads the Government's crime drive, was busy spurring Justice agents to solve numerous kidnappings and extortion threats with which the department has been flooded.

It is known that persons of national importance are the intended victims of some of the kidnappers and have received threats. However, so as to keep the extortioners from knowing search is being made for them by Government detectives.

Estonia Restrains Former Soldiers

Tallinn, Estonia, Aug. 11 (U.P.).—A state of emergency was proclaimed by the Estonian government today. All organizations of former soldiers, Socialist, youth, and two other bodies whose members wear uniforms have been suppressed.

The official reason given was "irresponsible actions and spreading of alarming news threatening public peace."

Steps also were taken to control the press and to regulate public meetings. A former serviceman's newspaper was confiscated.

Alabama Coal Painter, Adviser at Parley In London, Is Back in Capital

Under No Circumstances, They Say, Will Unions Be Recognized.

(Associated Press.)

Efforts to formulate a single code covering the giant bituminous industry ran into new difficulties yesterday in a flat refusal by Alabama coal operators to consent to their inclusion in the general agreement proposed by union miners and union operators.

Notice that the Alabama would under no circumstances yield on this point was served at a hearing before the Recovery Administration as Hugh S. Johnson, NRA chief, made it clear that he would not stand for the open shop feature which other nonunion operators insist upon.

Applicable to One State.

The code of competition offered by the Alabama group, intended to apply only to that State's coal industry and to be locally administered, provides for the maintenance of present wage scales and specifically reserves the right of workers not to enter any labor organization.

Meanwhile an appeal to bituminous operators to "put your machines under the shed until we get out of the ditch" was made by W. C. Kane, of Saline County, Illinois.

Kane said that one mine in Illinois removed its loading machinery and increased its average employment from 240 to 303 men, and that the average daily earnings were greater.

Flare-up at Hearing.

The Illinois bituminous coal mine union controversy flared at the hearing when John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, demanded that William Keck, secretary of the Progressive Miners of America, be removed from the witness stand.

Keck had been describing the strikes in Illinois when he charged that members of the United Mine Workers had been deputized to break up Progressive Union meetings and that the United Mine Workers had conspired with the operators to break Progressive contracts, Lewis jumped to his feet with a "parliamentary inquiry."

Will Reply to Charges.

"Is the United Mine Workers of America on trial?" he shouted. Immediately Lewis and Keck went into a huddle with deputy administrator K. M. Simpson, presiding.

Their conversation was not placed in the record, but Lewis said that he assured the administrator he would reply to the charges.

Previously, Representative Nesbit of Illinois asked the administrator to set up machinery for an election which would determine once and for all which union Illinois miners wanted.

Recovery of Cuba By U. S. Aid Is Aim would be able to communicate the terms of the American trade to Havana by telephone or cable.

An answer was expected from Havana within 24 hours. There was no official confirmation today, however, of reports that Mr. Roosevelt's trade proposal involved the immediate withdrawal of President Gerardo Machado.

Insures More Food.

The new land policy for Cuba looks to the reestablishment of farmers on small individual plots on a self-sustaining basis, which would insure adequate food supplies from the acreage now given over to surplus sugar production.

The reorganization of the Cuban debt would seek to reduce both interest charges and annual sinking fund requirements, so that the tax burden upon the Cuban landowner may be substantially reduced.

The third phase of the new American policy contemplates an effective organization of all the sugar territory supplying the United States. Through a quota system, each of the principal producing regions—including the Philippine Islands as well as the American beet and cane fields—would curtail annual tonnage to the point necessary to establish a stable balance between supply and demand. Political stability will follow the economic restoration of Cuba, according to the new plan.

Tariff Changes Due.

As yet, no thought has been given to the possibility of changes in the American tariff on sugar, but it is assumed by those in charge of details of the negotiations at Washington that this question eventually will be presented.

In the preliminary discussions of the Cuban sugar quota the United States has considered 1,750,000 tons annually as a starting figure. This quota may be raised to 2,000,000 tons if all other producing areas can be brought into a workable quota arrangement.

President Roosevelt's special train left here at 10 o'clock tonight for Harrisonburg, Va. About 10 o'clock tomorrow morning the President will meet Robert Fechner, director of the Civilian Conservation Corps, for an automobile inspection tour of forest army camps in middle Virginia. The Presidential party will take the regular camp luncheon at the Luray encampment tomorrow. The party is scheduled to reach the White House about 6 p. m.

New Zealanders Reach Gotham From London

New York, Aug. 11 (P).—G. W. Forbes, prime minister of New Zealand, and Robert Masters, New Zealand minister of industries and education, arrived today on the Aquitania after attending the World Economic Conference as delegates.

Forbes said the conference "meant much in the way of international agreement."

Edward Bruce Returns After "Vacation" to His Canvases Here.

Edward Bruce went to the London Economic Conference as technical adviser to Senator Key Pittman because he needed a vacation. Yesterday he was back at his apartment in the Mayflower, with Mrs. Bruce, ready to take up his regular routine of painting pictures 14 hours a day.

In his lifetime he has done many things. At Columbia he was a football player. In New York he was a lawyer. In the Philippines and China he was a business man.

At London he helped Senator Pittman through the intricacies of foreign exchange, money and banks. Now if he should do any of these things—except play football, for he has passed his fifty-sixth birthday—it only would be because he needed diversion. He does not like it that his association with the conference classed him temporarily with the "experts."

Painting Is Profession. Bruce's profession is painting; and for 10 years he has worked hard at it and today he has arrived at a place of distinction rarely accorded American artists. Examples of his work are owned by the Museum of Modern Art, Phillips Memorial Gallery, Los Angeles Museum, and San Francisco Museum of Art. New York, Paris, Chicago, Pittsburgh, San Antonio and Washington have seen his exhibits.

Throughout the life of Edward Bruce there were forces which brought the man inevitably to his destiny. Very early he showed a talent for painting. At 14 he began intensely to study art. He acquired a rudimentary technique by making outdoor sketches.

For the next 35 years his talent lay dormant while he worked at the jobs in which he now finds recreation. Shortly after graduation from Columbia Law School he was a partner in one of New York's leading law firms. Legal phases of railroad construction took him to the Philippines and China. There it was that he acquired the technical information that Senator Pittman used at the economic conference. There, also, his art was reborn.

For fully fifteen years, however, artistic expression for Edward Bruce took active form only in the collection of rare Chinese paintings. These he gathered as commercial interests took him over the country. As the business of making money became less pressing he found more time to study the works in his collection. Finally he was able to give up business and take up the profession of painting.

China is the oldest school of landscape painting in the world. Fifty years the Chinese have devoted to the development of this form. He adopted many of the methods of the Chinese masters. He saw what they saw in nature. He watched them transfer that to canvas. By learning the language, he came to an appreciation of the Chinese faculty for visualization of form, for reading and writing in China depend entirely upon how well one can remember 14,000 word pictures.

Going to Maine Coast. Bruce likes to tell the story of the painter Li Lung Meien, in the Tang dynasty, whose emperor commissioned him to make a picture of the gorges of the Yangtze. Many days later Li Lung Meien returned. "Where is your picture?" the emperor asked.

"In my heart," the artist answered. In September Bruce will go to the summer home of Supreme Court Justice Harlan F. Stone to "take into his heart" the rugged landscapes of the Maine coast. Until then he will work in his apartment here, transcribing to canvas views, perhaps, of London.

48,152 Sign Codes in Area. Norfolk, Va., Aug. 11 (P).—NRA code-signers in the district embracing Virginia, Maryland, the District of Columbia and North Carolina today totaled 48,152, according to a report given out at district headquarters at noon. Baltimore had 8,606 signers and Washington 3,906.

A fee, the person who accepts the money will be sent to the penitentiary," Mr. Jones said.

The law is specific. The section covering this point says: "No person, partnership, association or corporation shall make any charge in connection with a loan by the corporation . . . for services actually rendered for examination and perfecting of title, appraisal and all necessary services. Any person violating this subsection shall, upon conviction thereof, be fined not more than $10,000 or imprisoned not more than five years, or both."

Fees charged by Uncle Sam's appraisers are practically nothing. Fees authorized by the Washington Real Estate Board are at the rate of $1 per $1,000 up to $50,000 in value.

Home owners are warned against paying anybody anything except when authorized by Uncle Sam. Government officials now hope to get some of these particular racketeers in the toils of the law.

Ammonia Drives Four From Store

Meat and Groceries Are Damaged $625 by Leak in Refrigerator Line.

Ammonia fumes from a broken meat refrigerator pipe drove four customers from a grocery store at 1919 Benning road northeast yesterday and brought out the Fire Rescue Squad.

The leak was repaired by members of the squad, who were protected by gas masks. No one inhaled the dangerous fumes, they said.

Damage to meats and other food in the store was estimated at $625 by the proprietor, Simon Chalkin.

U. S. Must Hold To Caribbean, Lecturer Says

Interdependence of Nations Forces Action, "U" Conference Told.

"Whether we wish it or not, the United States can not avoid continuing to play in the Caribbean region a dominant—though not necessarily a dominating—role."

This was the statement of Dr. Chester Lloyd Jones, director of the School of Commerce of the University of Wisconsin, in the concluding lecture yesterday at the George Washington University Conference on Hispanic American Affairs.

Economic interdependence of the nations of the Americas, Dr. Jones said, is the cause of this situation. Increased cooperation between them is essential to their prosperity, he said. Charges of United States imperialism he branded as unjust.

He added it was natural that the small Latin-American countries should feel apprehensive at anything a nation as large as the United States did in their neighborhood.

The conference lasted six weeks under the direction of Dr. A. Curtis Wilgus, director of the George Washington University Center of Inter-American Studies. It was the second of its kind held here. Lecturers included faculty members from nine American and six European universities. Government experts, and officials of the Pan-American Union.

presented to Capt. Mario Torres Menier, chief of the aviation corps. Secretary of State Orestes Ferrera, a member of the presidential party, asked that time be granted for determination how the abdication could be legally carried out. High officers of the revolutionary movement went into session to decide the matter.

While the president's Liberal party, was preparing the counter proposal to the suggestion of Welles, the army, navy and aviation corps acted swiftly and smoothly to carry out their program without firing a single shot.

Artillery Battalion No. 1, stationed in Cabana Fortress under the command of Capt. Patricio Cardenas, led the way. It demanded the resignation of the president within 24 hours. All other battalions were invited to join in the movement and broadcasts to this effect went out addressed to the interior.

The response was unanimous. Detachments stationed throughout the island announced their acceptance of the new government. Artillery at Cabana Fortress was moved in position to bear on the presidential palace.

Herrera was called and informed that the army demanded abdication by Machado as the price of political peace in Cuba and to any threat of intervention by the United States. America is so empowered under the Platt amendment, which is a part of the Cuban constitution.

The palace guard was rushed to man machine guns which were hastily mounted around the president's residence. The presidential guard of cavalry was brought up for reinforcement.

"The president was informed," Torres Menier continued, "that he must deliver the power peacefully in order to avoid any combat."

"The army wants the country to feel that it acted for what it believed to be the best interests of Cuba in putting an end to the present situation. We ask the people to maintain tranquility, since there will be no violence."

Censorship on Calls. In the midst of the excitement this afternoon a censorship was clamped on all telegrams coming to the interior of the island, which has been in the throes of economic and political turmoil in an acute form for several days.

Announcement of President Machado's counter plan came from members of the executive committee of the president's own Liberal party, which yesterday condemned the activities of Welles, sponsor of a scheme of political settlement embodying a demand for the abdication of Machado. Today's development therefore came somewhat as a surprise, although it was known late last night that the Liberals were hesitating in their opposition to Welles' formula.

The Popular and Conservative parties had already supported the demand for Machado's retirement, having approved an arrangement which called for appointment of a new secretary of state, agreeable to all factions, to succeed to the high office.

Secretary to Retire. Orestes Ferrera, present secretary of state, is a staunch supporter of Machado and would retire with him, under the Welles plan of settlement.

The Machado counterplan therefore agrees with the American Ambassador's proposal in providing retirement of the president, but differs in that it names Machado's secretary of war to succeed him instead of leaving this choice to the various political groups.

Gen. Herrera's occupancy of the presidency would be temporary, however, it was said, since he would himself retire after a period of adjustment in which peace and order would be reestablished.

DeCespedes Favored. Manuel De Cespedes, well known Cuban diplomat who was minister to the United States from 1914 to 1922 and later was secretary of state, is favored by members of the opposition for the eventual succession to the presidency.

Ickes Warns

No Jobs on Public Works for Men Roving in Country.

The rolling-stone worker will gather no public works moss, according to a warning issued yesterday by Administrator Harold L. Ickes.

Under the provisions of the national industrial recovery act, Mr. Ickes pointed out, preference must be given to local labor. The exact phrasing reads: "To citizens who are bona fide residents of the political subdivision and or county in which the work is to be performed."

Almost every locality offers a plentiful supply of such labor, and moreover, regulations provide that laborers shall be selected as far as practical from lists of qualified workers submitted by local employment agencies designated by the United States Employment Service of the Department of Labor.

Mr. Ickes warns employment seekers under these conditions, not to leave their home towns in search of employment on public works projects elsewhere.

Tennessee Dry Law Repeal Plan Made

Nashville, Tenn., Aug. 11 (P).—A movement to repeal Tennessee's State prohibition laws was launched here today after the convention at which delegates elected the eighth amendment.

Hal H. Clements, of Knoxville, a former internal revenue collector, told the convention "this crusade ought to be kept up until the present dry laws are wiped from the statute books that hypocrisy might be ended in Tennessee."

Although the delegates took no action on his proposal, a few remained after adjournment and decided to form a permanent organization to work for repeal of the State dry laws and substitute a plan of local option.

Unless the laws are repealed, Mr. Clements said, "Tennessee is going to lose a world of revenue because the bordering States will be wet."

Machado a Fearless Fighter, Smooth Diplomat, Pegler Says

Has Made a Better Country Despite Unpopularity, Reporter Finds.

By Westbrook Pegler. New York, Aug. 11 (Spl).—One evening last winter in Miami, as the orchestra played and the crooner sang among the tables, I was talking about his pal, and the cork popped smartly from the wine bottle, a man by the name of Carl Byoir said that if I really wished to have conversation with Gen. Gerardo Machado, the President of Cuba, he could get it up.

Naturally, I asked Mr. Byoir to go ahead and fix it. Two days later I flew out over the shark waters, down over the Everglade snake flats and presently over the Keys of Florida and, in just two hours, into the heart of Havana.

It developed that Mr. Byoir had a subsidy from the treasury of Cuba and that President Machado was using the citizens' money to create propaganda in favor of his regime. Propaganda is Mr. Byoir's business.

In wartime in 1918, he discovered that governments, like pickle companies and play producers, also buy up public opinion by the yard or hod. You could call this rousing the rabble or taking the saps.

Made Germany Hateful. Mr. Byoir was one of those who poked up the hate against the Germans under George Creel, under the general authority of the spendthrift Committee of Public Information. Considering that the boys started with a cold proposition and turned on so much heat that American citizens presently considered it unpatriotic to call sauerkraut by its maiden name, one must admit they did a very good job.

So Mr. Byoir learned that governments do use the citizens' taxes to persuade the citizens to do this or that whether they want to or not. It is no criticism of Gen. Machado's government, either, to say that the citizens of Cuba have been compelled to pay for propaganda which they, individually, may resent.

For the next day I was escorted out to Gen. Machado's place, which is the Cuban term for a farm where nobody does any farming, by Tiro Mesa, the Mayor of Havana, a smart young man who was educated in England and knows more about the military and political history of Latin America than most American diplomats. In any sort of trade, Mr. Mesa should be able to remove an American diplomat's skin without unbuttoning his coat.

Machado, Business Man. All the way out to the fane we rode over a beautiful concrete highway. The highway ended just at the fane, suggesting that the general, who boasts of the good roads which he had built, hadn't done himself any harm in building this one. On the way we passed through a new model village named for Gen. Machado, where the general had large holdings. I was told he had sold out while the selling was good.

The president was protected by sentries on the state and by a young, handsome aid in a khaki uniform at his side.

The general is a hard man. He fought in '98 against the Spaniards, and his family had fought them for many years before under terrible conditions. His mother had taken the field in order to cook for the boys and the father.

He spoke only Spanish. I told Mr. Mesa I had heard him compared to Weyler, the butcher. At mention of Weyler's name, Machado's black, bushy brows twitched.

Wallace Gets Plans to Raise Prices of Sugar

Suggestions Designed to Rule Domestic Rates; Beet Men Obdurate.

(Associated Press.) Sugar stabilization plans designed to raise and regulate prices in the American domestic market was submitted to Secretary Wallace yesterday for approval despite the threat of Western beet sugar growers to refuse to accept it.

Hearings on the plan, which would divide the market between beet and cane growers of the United States, its Territories and islands, ended after Charles M. Kearney, of Nebraska, president of the American Sugar Beet Association, told administrators of the agricultural adjustment act that his group absolutely would not accept any arrangement restricting future expansion of their production.

Plan Still Uncertain. His statement left the status of the stabilization plan uncertain. Thomas H. Woodward, presiding at the hearing, said after the proposal nevertheless would go to Secretary Wallace to accept, reject, or accept with modifications.

Dr. John Lee Coulter, who presided at the meetings of the committee which drafted the plan, expressed optimism it would be put through, although perhaps with modifications.

"These two days of hearings," Coulter said, "were fairly representative of the much more detailed thrashing over of the problems with which we wrestled for three weeks. The highlights were all out today, but there was nothing new. The door is not closed to an ultimate agreement."

Workable Idea Awaited. "The most important thing, in my judgment, was that no one suggested an alternative except to let the market collapse. There was no substitute or other workable plan offered."

The last hours of the hearing were devoted to a plea by representatives of the Children's Bureau and labor spokesmen to end child labor in the beet fields and to improve labor conditions.

White House Plans Display Of Consumers' Blue Eagle

Mrs. Roosevelt Also for Equal Pay for Equal Work in Codes.

Keeping in step with the rank and file of the country, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt will place the consumers' Blue Eagle in a window of the White House.

This announcement was made yesterday by Mrs. Roosevelt at a press conference in the executive mansion. A second eagle will be placed in one of the White House corridors, Mrs. Roosevelt said, but she was not prepared to state whether display of the recovery symbol on the White House cars was contemplated.

The object of Mrs. Roosevelt's conference was further discussion of the principle of equal pay for equal work by men and women. It is understood that every effort will be made to have this principle a part of every code formulated.

In previous discussion of the subject, Mrs. Roosevelt had discovered that a few of the first codes formulated under the NRA showed inequalities in regard to women in industry. It is understood that these codes will be revised as soon as possible.

Mrs. Roosevelt agreed that the equal-pay-for-equal-work principle would cover the proposed blanked equal-rights amendment to the Constitution as sponsored by the National Woman's Party.

However, she pointed out that the principles she indorses would not affect the protective laws and other legislative safeguards for women which would be disturbed by the passage of the equal-rights amendment of the National Woman's Party.

In discussing the problem of the middle-aged woman in industry, Mrs. Roosevelt declared that the problem of the middle-aged was not confined to women alone, but that the industrial world is confronted with it.

The general talked in routine figures. He loved the U. S. A. and relied on the American spirit of fair play and democracy. He never loosened his scalp or said, "Listen, Pal, it is like this."

Country Appears Prosperous. Mr. Mesa and I started back to town over the general's highway. The country was neater and greener than it had been two years before and individual poverty seemed much less acute.

"If this man is so good," I said to Mr. Mesa, "why are the people sore at him?"

"People," said Mr. Mesa, "people don't know why they get sore. You ask anybody in the island, who built that road, that school, that hospital? The answer will be Machado. Then you ask, 'What do you think of Machado?' And the answer will be 'Machado, he is a dirty so-and-so!'"

It was a puzzling situation. Was Machado a great grafter? Maybe so. Other presidents had appropriated money for the roads, the schools and hospitals, but had never built them at all.

Mr. Mesa sighed, gave it up, and ordered a light beer.

Autogiro Pilots Given Licenses

Federal Bureau Reveals Extent of "Windmill" Flying in U. S.

Pilots ranging in age from 17 to 54 years are specially licensed to fly autogiros, according to the aeronautics branch of the Department of Commerce.

There are 28 autogiros in the United States, 26 of them in Pennsylvania. There are 24 pilots, including one woman, whose licenses are for autogiro flying only. Any pilot holding a license may fly the "windmill planes" for pleasure, and any pilot may gain an autogiro rating on his present license by passing a test.

The youngest pilot is Thomas W. Warner, Jr., of Pasadena, Calif., and the oldest is Robert L. Montgomery, of Philadelphia.

Shoe-Repair Code Fixes 8-Hour Day

Representatives of the shoe repair trade in Washington presented a code at NRA headquarters yesterday.

Maximum hours of labor were set at eight hours a day, except on any day preceding a legal holiday, when a maximum of ten hours is asked. No shop will be open later than 7 p. m., except on Saturday, when 9 p. m. will be the closing hour.

Minimum wages for journeymen and benchmen are set at $20; furbers, $15 and unskilled apprentices, $12. Employees would be given the right to organize and bargain collectively through representatives of their own choosing. Compulsory joining of company unions would be prohibited.

Local shoe repair men said this is the first code to be presented by the shoe repair trade.

Meriam Offers Federal Agency Salary Control

Pay of Emergency Groups May Come Under Act of Classification.

By Robert C. Albright.
Salaries in Federal emergency agencies may be brought into line with the classification act, despite congressional exemption of all the new units from civil service laws. A clear-cut plan with this in view has been laid before the Civil Service Commission by Dr. Lewis Meriam, of the Brookings Institution.

Dr. Meriam, whose study of civil service problems was conducted at the commission's own request, expressed concern at "the tendency to take positions in the newly created depression agencies out of the classification act."

Suggests Cooperation.
"I believe your commission and the Budget Bureau should get together, and the Budget Bureau should utilize your classification division in keeping the situation in hand," he advised Chairman Harry B. Mitchell, of the Civil Service Commission.

"The Budget Bureau as an agency of the President surely has the requisite authority to control salaries in the new emergency organizations even if the law provides they are not legally subject to the classification act."

Dr. Meriam argued that the reclassification act was enacted to bring order out of chaos created by salaries running wild in World War emergency agencies, pointing out that now the country is facing another emergency, the classification system is not functioning.

Points to Vast Losses.
"If the salary proposals of the new organizations are materially out of line with those under the classification act, the Budget Bureau and the President should be advised of the fact," he said.

"The country lost millions of dollars during the World War because of failure to control salaries," Dr. Meriam continued. "It would be unfortunate if history were to repeat itself, especially when you have in the Civil Service Commission an organization trained and experienced in dealing with just this type of work."

Youth Is Arrested In Blackmail Plot

$5,000 Was Demanded of Oregon Official; Decoy Effective.

Bend, Oreg., Aug. 11 (AP)—Jack Duckworth, 18, was held here today accused of attempted extortion and threats on the life of Dr. J. C. Vandeventer, member of the State game commission. Police said he tried to extort $5,000 under threat of death. A note demanding the money instructed it be left in a gravel pit or the doctor and his son would be slain, officers said. A dummy package was placed in the pit and the place was watched by officers.

A boy who grabbed the package was overpowered. Police said he was Clarence Parsons, 15, Duckworth's brother-in-law, and that he told them Duckworth had written the letters.

Automobiles operated by the singer and Monkiewicz collided at a street intersection. The plaintiffs charge Mrs. Zimbalist with reckless driving. Each plaintiff asked $5,000 for their injuries.

Pope Tells Erie Bishop He Admires Roosevelt

Vatican City, Aug. 11 (AP)—Pope Pius is a strong admirer of President Roosevelt, Bishop John M. Cannon, of Erie, Pa., said today after an audience of one hour with the Pontiff, in which they discussed ecclesiastical and secular affairs in the United States.

The bishop told the Pope he was hopeful of conditions in the United States, that the most critical period seems to have passed. The Pope expressed himself as equally hopeful. Means of alleviating unemployment and of helping the jobless were discussed by the Pontiff and his visitor.

The War Department, which had a salvage charge against the craft, offered it for sale. The only bid, one for $20, was made by A. Ketchum, son of the original owner of the Underhill.

Chinese Army Continues Rout Of Communists

40,000 Reds Driven Back as Capture Nears by Gen. Tsai.

Amoy, China, Aug. 11 (AP)—Gen. Tsai Ting-Kai's rejuvenated army followed up a smashing victory earlier today over 40,000 Communists between Changchow and Lungyen by continuing to drive the red army back toward Lungyen.

The capture of that city appeared imminent.

Gen. Tsai's nineteenth route army, which achieved fame early last year for its heroic defense of Shanghai against the Japanese, were reported retreating yesterday before the Communists. The latter, following up their victory at Lungyen, were threatening to drive on to this important seaport, east of Changchow.

Amoy was packed with refugees. The United States gunboat Fulton, sent here to protect American nationals, is lying in the harbor. A French gunboat also arrived and the foreign population is not uneasy.

Missionaries Missing.

Hangchow, China, Aug. 11 (AP)—Attempts to communicate with eight American Catholic priests and Sisters of Mercy have failed since their home, the City of Yuanchow, was captured by rebels June 27.

Provincial troops have tried unsuccessfully to recapture the town. United States Consul General Walter Adams asked the provincial government to try to protect all Americans in the war zone.

The Rev. Edward McCarthy and the Rev. Francis Flaherty, both priests of the Passionist Order, and the sisters, Genevieve Ryan, Christiana Werth, Magdalene Ivan, Rosario Goss, Saintanne Callahan and Mark Mullen, are the marooned missionaries.

$40-Week Dime-a-Dance Girls Just "Gotta" Fly Blue Eagle

New York, Aug. 11 (AP)—Broadway, proud of knowing "all the answers," has not been able to solve the riddle involving NRA, taxidancers and, just to make it harder, the chorus girls.

For business reasons, one dime-a-dance hall manager said today, his hostesses ought to come under a code, because, he added, customers are asking, "Where's your Blue Eagle?"

Meanwhile, chorines working for motion picture companies are asking that the industry's code provide that they be paid in cash, rather than checks, and that they be allowed Pullman sleeping accommodations on trips between locations.

The requests were contained in a petition signed by Mrs. Dorothy Bryant, executive secretary of the Chorus Equity Association of America, and Frank Gilmore, president of the Actors Equity Association. It was presented today to the code committee of motion picture exhibitors.

The chorines also ask to be put on definite working shifts, which caused some producers to ask if that meant they were to hire several sets of dancers for each show.

The matter of tips, main source of income for the pay-as-you-dance girls in the Roccoco halls of upper Broadway, forms a major obstacle to a code for their industry.

"You see, it's this way," explained Hugh Corrigan, manager of one hall, "the girls make about $30 or $40 a week on tips. Some make a lot less and others a lot more."

"Anyway, the minimum wage, figured on a commission basis, comes to about $18. And that's more than the NRA minimum. Right?"

"Now then we got to have a

Trio Convicted In Mexican Guard's Death

Americans Face Ten Years in Prison for Alleged Strangulation.

Los Angeles, Aug. 11 (AP)—A jury in Federal Court convicted three American fishermen of manslaughter today in connection with the death of Pedro G. Pineda, Mexican customs guard, whose body was washed ashore in the bay at Ensenada, Mex., last winter.

The fishermen, on whose boat Pineda had been stationed as a guard while the craft, the $40,000 Acafin was detained for alleged illegal fishing, were accused of strangling the officer, throwing his body overboard and putting to sea.

The defendants were Jerry Acafin, master of the boat; Mike Marin and Anton Bjazich, crew members. Their counsel, Samuel M. Shortridge, former United States Senator from California, asked that bail be fixed for his clients pending an appeal and the Court took the request under consideration.

The boat was seized in Mexican waters last October for asserted poaching. After being detained several months, Acafin claimed he learned his vessel had been ordered released and he decided to sail, giving Pineda the opportunity of going ashore in a dory. He said the guard was not harmed and the last seen of him was as he rode shoreward.

The court set next Monday for the passing of sentence, the maximum penalty being not more than ten years in prison.

Unions Deny Film Strikers Returning

5,000 Still Out; Report of Truce Called Strategy of Producers.

Hollywood, Aug. 11 (AP)—Headquarters of five film unions whose members are on strike for better pay and adjusted working hours, asserted today the walkout was "in full force and effect" despite reports at some studios that many strikers were returning to their jobs.

The announcement of returning strikers was branded by one union spokesman as "the latest move by the producers to break the strike before a higher power forces them to enter a fair arbitration."

Rumors were heard that the dispute, which has thrown some 5,000 technicians out of work, might be submitted to a court of arbitration, composed of three judges, but union leaders said they had heard nothing of it.

Lakes Freighters Collide in Fog

Port Huron, Mich., Aug. 11 (AP)—The freighter Willis King, of the Interstate Steamship Co., Buffalo, and the package freighter George D. Dixon, of the Great Lakes Transit Co., Detroit, collided in the St. Mary's River just south of here late today in fog and a blinding rain. Misunderstanding of whistle signals and poor visibility were blamed for the accident.

The Dixon was stove in amidship and tonight was in shallow water off the Canadian shore. Capt. Albert Goodberry, her commander, said she was not leaking badly and that he could proceed except for a bent propeller shaft. She was bound for Milwaukee from Windsor, Ont., loaded with merchandise.

The Willis King, which was downbound, is stove in at the bow, but reached the Edison docks at Marysville. She is commanded by Capt. F. N. Watts.

The action alleged that Nichols was operating a car which crashed with the vehicle of John P. Lee, of Garrett Park, Md. Lee asked damages of $10,500; his wife, Olive T. Lee, $20,000, and James T. Mitchell, $5,000.

open shop industrialists in both the coal and steel industries.

"Every agreement or code whereby any association expects to get the benefits from the law must contain that provision as a part of the agreement," he said. "Then it becomes binding and every employer must deal with representatives of his employees without coercion or restrictions of any kind. That is the law I have to execute and I am going to execute."

"Economic death" will follow revocation of the privilege of displaying the Blue Eagle of recovery, Gen. Johnson predicted in discussing receipt of numerous complaints of violations which have been received.

Codes will not be permitted to serve as a cloak for exploitation or monopolistic development, he warned. Such complaints will be referred to the Federal Trade Commission and to the Department of Justice, he said.

The entire membership of the American Federation of Labor was said, and "organized labor and its friends" must "see to it that there are no violations."

"All must be alert and watchful in order to prevent the perpetration of fraud and the use of the Blue Eagle emblem by those who are not entitled to either display or exploit it," Mr. Green said.

Warns of Public Opinion.

Intrastate as well as interstate concerns were warned by Gen. Johnson of the force of public opinion. That power will be depended on to whip intrastate concerns into the recovery lineup.

"The Blue Eagle can not recognize a State line," Gen. Johnson said. "The Blue Eagle does not know anything about intrastate or interstate lines. It is the sanction and disciplinary force of public opinion. We are not talking about the Federal against the State system of laws. We are talking about the public opinion of the whole American people."

For additional industries, boot and shoe manufacturing, wholesale drug, cheese and cotton batting industries have been brought into the recovery corral under modified provisions of the President's volunteer blanket wage and hour code.

After having rejected several proposals by the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, Gen. Johnson said he expected the whole question would be satisfactorily settled by Monday night. His statement came after a late afternoon conference with a committee of publishers. The first action will be a temporary code, pending public hearing and approval of a detailed code.

Revised Codes Offered.

Six associations of retailers, now under a temporary wage and hour agreement, submitted a revised code for permanent consideration. Those submitting included furniture, hardware, mail order, clothing and furriers, shoe and dry goods retailers. The leather industry also submitted a code and public hearings were completed on one proposed by the underwear industry.

Frightened Caretaker of New York Estate Kills Animal, Believed to Be Either Baboon or Chimpanzee, When It Tries to Enter His House.

Schenectady, N. Y., Aug. 11 (AP)—At first Nick Dentz, 87, the caretaker, thought it was a twig, swayed by the wind, scratching against the rainwater window of the big house in the dark.

He lighted his pipe and went on reading.

A door rattled. Nick put down his book and listened. Then a scratching at another window. He put out the light and peered into the darkness. Nothing. No sound in the big house.

"Getting a little jump, aren't you, Nick?" he mused to himself, turning on the light.

Then the scratching sound at the first window again. A man, rising to high pitch and ending in an excited jabber. Nick's hair stood on end. He dropped his pipe, seized a rifle and waited.

A bony hand appeared at the window, then slowly a face rose above the sill, eyes blinking in the light. A diabolical face, lips contorted. A shot crashed out from Nick's rifle, then five more, right through the glass window.

This afternoon he crept to a phone, startled a neighbor two miles away with his frantic summons. Sheriff Carroll Gardner sent his deputies.

They found Nick Dentz shaking with fright, empty cartridges on the floor.

"Shot it," he said. "It tried to get out in the garden by the window lay a furred body."

"Either a chimpanzee or a baboon," said Sheriff Gardner. "A bullet went through its head."

He began an investigation to find out whence it might have come.

Pilots Forecast Dispute on Pay In Airline Code

$250 Guaranteed Minimum Provided at Hourly or Monthly Rates.

Airline operators have filed their and airline pilots yesterday a disagreement over the code for pilot pay.

The code was prepared by the Aeronautics Chamber of Commerce, headed by Capt. Thomas Doe, president of Eastern Air Transport. It provides for paying pilots "on an hourly or monthly rate for flying, with a guaranteed minimum of $250." Operators explained this was no effort to influence the current dispute on pilot pay, but that it was a minimum established for the guidance of all airlines.

The code lists a maximum of 110 hours flying a month, which is the limitation set by the Aeronautics Branch of the Department of Commerce for airline pilots.

Copilots will receive $150 as a minimum monthly salary, with a maximum flying time of 150 hours in any month, according to the code. Attendants, such as stewards and hostesses, will receive a minimum of $100 a month, with a maximum of 150 hours flying time.

Shop mechanics will receive 40 cents an hour as a minimum, with a 40-hour-a-week average over 52 weeks, no weekly time to exceed 48 hours.

Service mechanics, radio operators and field mechanics will be paid $80 a month as a minimum with no maximum time fixed because of the intermittent nature of their work.

Sundown to End Terrapin Races

Point Patience Visitors Can Bring Own Entries or Buy 'Em at Stables.

The Point Patience Derby Sweepstakes, scheduled for Labor Day, probably will be the longest in the history of racing. While it is being run, the grandstand will retire for boating, fishing, swimming or tennis, for lunch and perhaps for dinner.

Only racing officials will stand by to see that none of the entries inadvertently break traditions and realize a burst of speed that will carry them over the course two or even three times.

The Point Patience Derby Sweepstakes will be run by Terrapin. Visitors can bring their own entries or buy them at the Point Patience Terrapin Stables for $3 each. As hotel officials point out, there is little opportunity for cheating, as the best trained and purest blooded stock can not resist the temptation to stop for frequent sun naps.

Truck Owners Agree Upon Terms of Code

(Associated Press.)
A tentative agreement on wages and hours for the trucking code being prepared by a committee of truck owners was reached yesterday for presentation to the National Recovery Administration. Previously it had decided that all trucks should be included in the code that were not operated by businesses under other codes.

The tentative decision calls for a basic pay of 40 cents an hour unless that is higher than the equivalent 1929 wage, in which case the 1929 rate would prevail. In no event, it was decided, should the pay be less than 25 cents an hour in the South or 30 cents in the North.

Circus and Side Show Freaks Demand Code

(United Press.)
Circus and sideshow freaks want to participate in President Roosevelt's recovery program.

Hugh S. Johnson, recovery administrator, received a letter yesterday from a Coney Island sideshow performer, who asked that the freaks be given higher wages and shorter working hours. He said they now work 12 to 14 hours a day, seven days a week, receiving between $15 and $20 a week for their work.

"City Slickers" Missed Them

Barwick's Watermelon Tourists Took In All Free Attractions and Spent Only $26.71 Each on Two Weeks' Tour of 12 States.

Barwick, Ga., Aug. 11 (AP)—Soaked with statistics about Chicago's Century of Progress, the Falls of Niagara, and Washington's patriotic shrines, Barwick's watermelon tourists are back home—but not broke.

As a matter of fact, the party's financial statement for the 3,100-mile trip shows that hardly a dent was made in the $51,000 profit Barwick cleaned up on its watermelon crop.

The two-week truck tour through 12 States into Canada and the District of Columbia cost each of the 30 members of the party $26.71.

In Gangster Haunt.
Despite the sights of the Midway, Barwick watched its purse strings; and when a stranger in their modest suburban hotel told them the inn was a rendezvous for gang plottings and when the Rev. Mr. Brooks discovered several loose cartridges in his room, Barwick cranked up the bus and headed for Niagara.

There are no mountains, lakes or waterfalls in south Georgia, and when Niagara loomed before Barwick, the fair's temples and palaces paled into insignificance.

They visited the Rapids and Goat Island and would have gone into the Cave of Winds but it cost a dollar.

They parked their bus on Capitol Circle in Washington and looked over the White House, the Capitol and the Washington Monument.

Oratory "Must Go On."
One after another arose at the fish fry, with which neighbors welcomed them home, to tell of the spectacles they saw. Then visitors from Moultrie, Valdosta, Quitman and other surrounding towns got up and lauded the Barwick spirit.

Fish were frying in the grove outside and people were stewing in the heat inside the Barwick school auditorium, but both fish and folks waited patiently for the oratory to run its course.

Farm Land Bank's Appraisals Assailed

Valuations Placed So Low Farmers Can't Borrow, Says Official.

Salt Lake City, Aug. 11 (AP)—M. S. Winder, secretary of the American Farm Bureau Federation, asserted today that Farm Land Bank appraisals are so low many farmers are borrowing Federal funds only as an extreme measure, when other sources of credit are closed to them.

Speaking at a conference of Western Farm Bureau officials, Winder declared: "Farm properties in many sections of the Midwest are being appraised at only 50 to 60 per cent of their actual value, and meager reports from early appraisals made in the West indicate the same low figure."

Rich Reno Visitor Is Alcohol Victim

Reno, Nev., Aug. 11 (AP)—August Frolch, county coroner, said today he had abandoned plans for an investigation into the unexpected death here yesterday of Horace Elliott Wadsworth, wealthy divorcee.

Frolch said Dr. Frank W. Samuels had signed a certificate attributing death to alcoholism and not to an overdose of a sleeping potion, as first announced.

Relatives of Wadsworth requested that his body be sent to Kalamazoo, Mich., for burial. Wadsworth, a native of Detroit, was 34 years old. He came here two months ago for a divorce from Elizabeth Baker, of Stratford, Ontario.

Leases of the nine buildings to be held are subject to approval by the court as part of the contract between the new bank and conservators of the institutions joining its plan. Mr. Graham also announced employment of 25 employees of Federal-American National Bank & Trust Co. by the coming Hamilton institution, date for the opening of which has not yet been announced.

Soup Hurl Marriage Into Soup

MRS. JOSEPH VEVERKA, whose romance was drowned in soup, has asked for a divorce in Chicago. Her husband, a factory soup sipper, cut loose with professional remarks about a savory brew his wife fixed up. That, figuratively speaking, put his marriage completely "into the soup," and his wife sued for divorce. She took the soup to court.

Contest Is Seen In Arlington on Democrat Post

County Committee Head, in Office 10 Years, to Have Opposition for Job.

ARLINGTON COUNTY, BUREAU OF THE POST, Clarendon, Va. Tel. Cl. 509.

Arlington County Democrats who attend the special meeting of the new county committee next Monday night at the courthouse are expected to witness a contest for the chairmanship.

William L. Bragg, committee member from Clarendon precinct No. 2, who has held the office for ten years, seeks reelection. His greatest opponent probably is Charles R. Fenwick, newly-elected member from the East Falls Church precinct.

Fenwick was recently elected president of the Arlington County Democratic Club. He is also president of the East Falls Church Citizens Association. Bragg in addition to having been county chairman for the past ten years is also a member of the State Central Democratic Committee.

Among other members who have been mentioned for the office are Emory N. Hosmer from Arlington, who was reelected to the committee, and Robert H. Anderson, a member from Clarendon precinct No. 2. Hosmer has been on the committee for many years. He is president of the Arlington County Bar Association. Anderson is president of the Arlington County Civic Club.

LaGuardia, choice of the Fusion forces opposing Tammany, is an independent Republican who delights in "upsetting the apple cart," a trait that has frequently put him in office one election and out the next.

A former president of the Board of Aldermen and member of Congress, LaGuardia always has been a reformer—and is proud of it. The mayor, on the other hand, once commented:

"No real New Yorker, no red-blooded citizen, cares to assume the role of rampant reformer."

Impeachment May Be Bond Forging Sequel

Kansas Governor Holds Important Evidence Is Being Formed.

Topeka, Kans., Aug. 11 (AP).—Gov. Alf M. Landon indicated today impeachment proceedings might be warranted in the Kansas municipal bond forgery scandal.

Announcing he had requested Ronald Boynton, attorney general; W. T. Markham, superintendent of public instruction, and Will J. French, State auditor, to release to investigators any correspondence or records in their offices—a request promptly complied with by all three—the Governor said:

"We are developing very important new information in this case, which will come to light at the time of the assault or impeachment proceedings."

He would not say who might be involved.

Investigators searching the maze of transactions carried on by Ronald Finney, broker and market speculator under arrest on charges of uttering forged bonds to the National Bank of Topeka, the known amount of forged bonds was well over $800,000.

Senator E. H. Rees, of Emporia, told reporters today Lyon County officials had discovered they held $800,000 in forged bonds as collateral for deposits in the Fidelity State and Savings Bank of Emporia.

Alexandria Plans U. S. Loan Meeting

Council Session Monday to Study Application for $600,000.

A special meeting of the Alexandria City Council has been called by Mayor Edmund F. Tiger for Monday night to take action on the proposal to borrow $600,000.

Instead of $500,000 as at first planned, under the Industrial Recovery Act, to be expended on public improvements, including a new Central High School to cost approximately $300,000.

A committee appointed by the mayor met informally with the City School Board Thursday night and agreed that the high school should be among the first projects undertaken. Of the balance of the loan, $200,000 would be expended for street improvements and $100,000 for sewer work.

The loan would bear 4 per cent interest and the city would be required to pay back only 70 per cent of the loan, or $420,000, the balance of $180,000 being an outright gift from the Federal Government. The city would issue bonds which the Government would bid in at par and hold as security. The money would be made available as the work progressed, so that interest on the entire amount would not have to be paid for the entire term of the loan.

Wreck of Invalid's Romance Revealed

San Francisco, Aug. 11 (AP).—Remnants of a romance that once made a whole city smile its approval appeared in drab courtroom atmosphere here today in the rival hard-luck stories of Ruby Adams and John Coffey Dan Davis.

Audiences used to be generous with applause when Ruby bowed so prettily before the footlights. That was before a stage drop fell upon her and broke her back. As for Coffey Dan—travelers the world over remember his famous restaurant, where every guest was met by a chorus of pounding little wooden mallets.

When Coffey Dan married Ruby, invalid in a wheel chair, the city beamed its blessing. But it didn't work out, and there was a divorce. Today Davis said he had to borrow money to come here from his Arlington home, where he was charged with failure to pay alimony.

Poisoning Charged To Milwaukee Man

Milwaukee, Aug. 11 (AP).—In a verdict holding that a Milwaukee man had died of poisoning, a coroner's jury today recommended that Paul Meyer, 59, be prosecuted. Mittedstedt was a roomer in the Meyer home when he died, July 29.

Meyer stood on his constitutional rights and declined to testify, although his attorney had difficulty in keeping him from talking.

Nest on Statue of St. Francis Here Recalls Legend of Birds

St. Francis With Birds

His Sermon to Feathered Brothers Remembered in Cloister Episode.

More than 600 years ago a man of God, Francis of Assisi by name, walked through a grove of trees in a place called Pian d'Arena in Italy.

At the approach of Francis and his companions, a flock of birds began to sing and Francis said to his comrades:

"Stay where you are!" He walked alone into the flock. The birds did not fly away but climbed on his shoulder, and even on his head.

Then the good man preached to the birds in this wise:

"My brothers," he said, "God give you peace. Much should you praise and love your Creator, brother birds, for He has given you feathers for clothing and wings for flight and all that you have need of, God has made you noble among His creatures, for He has given you a dwelling in the purity of the air, and though you neither sow nor reap, yet He keeps and feeds you."

State provides shelter.

And down the ages the story of St. Francis of Assisi preaching to the birds has persisted in Christian history.

In the beautiful cloister garth of the College of Preachers, Washington Cathedral, is a statue of St. Francis with his birds.

A short time ago it was discovered that, in keeping with the tradition of St. Francis and his love for his feathered friends, a love bird had built her nest on the head of the statue.

Straw by straw, stick by stick, the faithful creature had carried the makings for the shelter of her young to the replica of one ever the friend of her kind.

5 Held as Robbers Of Anglers' Autos

Five youths, accused of stealing fishermen's lunches from automobiles near Great Falls, are in the Fairfax County Jail, facing charges of grand larceny.

Besides the lunches, they are charged with taking jewelry, clothing, silverware, money and even an artificial hand from cars parked along Difficult Run. Deputy Sheriff Henry Magarity, after receiving complaints from fishermen that handies were wrenched off of door windows of their parked cars, arrested one. On information furnished by the boy he arrested four other youths, recovering much of the stolen goods.

The prisoners are: Woodrow Poole, 1259 Thirty-fifth street northwest; Bert Turner, 3056 M street northwest; William Trammell, of Georgetown; Samuel E. Jenkins, of Springfield, Va.; and Aubrey Meadows, of Great Falls.

Elusive Diploma Helps Hotel Guests

Butler Who Seeks Degree Must Remain at Work to Earn Tuition.

The hard luck of "Doctor" Gray, butler at large of the Hill Top House, overlooking the gap at Harpers Ferry, is the good luck of the hotel's summer residents. Gray is the hotel's oldest employee in years of service, and his work each summer has had its motive the payment of his board and tuition in a nearby medical school during the winter. But, as he explains it, he matriculates freely and graduates with difficulty.

The elusiveness of his diploma is the source of selfish satisfaction to the Hill Top House's steady clientele. Despite his medical aspirations, he is considered one of the best butlers in West Virginia. His service is as much a part of the attractions offered by the Hill Top House as are the breezes that sweep over the boardwalk and the view of the Potomac flowing at the foot of the hill.

Strong Guard Protects Jury In Hamm Case

Brewer, Testifying, Keeps Promise to Aid; Secret Indictment Asked.

St. Paul, Aug. 11 (AP).—Locked doors cloaked deliberations of a Federal grand jury today as it heard testimony about the $100,000 kidnaping of William Hamm, Jr., millionaire brewer of St. Paul.

The jury faced the duty of hearing 15 witnesses, including Sheriff George O'Brien, Eukhom, Wis., and four fellow officers, who picked up four members of the Roger Touhy gang of Chicago, including its leader.

True to his promise to police, Hamm was ready to aid toward bringing his suspected captors to justice. Hamm was among the first to testify.

L. L. Drill, United States district attorney, said he would ask a secret indictment under the so-called Lindbergh kidnaping law.

Corridors about the grand jury room were dotted with Department of Justice investigators.

Authorities felt it was in the best interest of their case and protection of their witnesses that names of witnesses be suppressed.

A secret indictment would enable the Government to suppress the names of its witnesses.

Though no direct reference was made to the Hamm case by Federal Judge Robert C. Bell in his instructions, he termed kidnaping a "violent" crime and told jurors it was "extremely dangerous to the welfare of society."

Meanwhile, Federal operatives continued working on the Charles F. Urschel case and divulged that more of the marked ransom money paid for the release of the kidnaped Oklahoma oil man was turning up daily in Minneapolis and St. Paul stores.

Rum Runner Slain In Motor Battle

Car Roars Along Till It Hits Pole and Hurts Deputy.

Durham, N. C., Aug. 11 (AP).—Deputy Sheriff L. L. Morgan shot Brian Rush, a liquor runner, to death today as they fought in Rush's automobile with the car roaring along a Durham County highway at 55 miles an hour.

When Rush was slain, the automobile left the road and crashed into a telephone pole. Morgan was thrown into a field and suffered slight head and body injuries.

The struggle began when Morgan boarded Rush's automobile in an attempt to arrest him. Morgan jumped to the running board and as Rush whipped the car about at high speed in an effort to shake the officer off, the deputy struggled with the rum runner and finally he pulled his pistol and fired.

Three cases of liquor were in Rush's car.

Youth Wins Freedom In Physician's Death

New York, Aug. 11 (AP).—Raymond Sullivan, 18, was freed of a homicide charge today when the grand jury refused to indict him in connection with the death of Dr. Walter P. MacGibbon, 61, an ear, nose and throat specialist.

Sullivan was quoted by police as saying he struck Dr. MacGibbon on the head with a whiskey bottle when the physician's conduct became offensive. He said he had gone to the doctor's apartment, at the latter's invitation, on Aug. 3 to seek help in finding a job.

6 Bitten by Mad Dog In Nebraska Town

Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 11 (AP).—Anxious mothers questioned their small sons and a humane society official posted a $2 reward today for information leading to the identification of the boy who tried to take the dog home.

It was killed after it bit five other persons who have received treatment for rabies.

Crisis Passed In Milk Strike, Lehman Avers

Leaders Declare Quiet Day Does Not Mean Holiday Is Weakening.

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 11 (AP).—Gov. Herbert H. Lehman today declared that "the crisis in the milk-strike situation has definitely passed" as the milk holiday went through its eleventh day without violence.

At Newport, at almost the same time, Stanley Pisek, militant strike leader in the east-central counties, characterized as "damnable lies" reports he received that the strike was over. "The holiday will continue," he asserted, "until the producers' demands are met. It seems as if every one is trying to misrepresent and hurt the farmers' cause."

Albert Woodhead, president of the Empire Dairymen's Protective Association, original backer of the movement, at Rochester said that the day's lull was due more to his request that strikers stay off the highways and keep their milk at home, than to a desire to give up the milk holiday.

"I don't think the strike will ever cease until the governor or the (State) milk board meets with the farmers and settles the whole thing to their satisfaction," he said.

"The flow of milk in the various consuming centers throughout the State has been increasing and the milk plants are reopening," Gov. Lehman said today after scrutinizing reports from key stations of the State police and from sheriffs' offices. "All reports that I have been receiving show that the situation is improving. They show very clearly that the sheriffs and district attorneys are now on the job."

W. R. Hoag, famous engineer, dies at 74.

World-Renowned Consultant Stricken on Visit to Minneapolis.

Minneapolis, Aug. 11 (AP).—William Ricketson Hoag, world known consulting engineer, died of heart disease while visiting here today. He was 74 and a resident of Lake Worth, Fla.

Hoag was head of the civil engineering department at the University of Minnesota in 1905, when he retired and moved to Florida. He was a native of Fillmore County, Minnesota. A former president of the Minnesota Surveyors and Engineers Society, he was an American delegate to a good roads meeting in Europe in 1896. He was a past president of the American Society of Civil Engineers.

He is survived by his wife, a daughter, Mrs. Helen Carmichael, Silver Springs, Fla., and two sons, E. L. Hoag, St. Paul, and William M. Hoag, Jacksonville, Fla.

Funeral services will be held Monday.

Bad Weather Holds Up Arrival of Official Insignias.

Two Army air planes, scheduled to bring Washington its official NRA insignias, were delayed yesterday by poor weather. They are expected to arrive here at 2 p. m. today.

Heads of the local NRA army, went to Bolling Field yesterday to meet the planes. After 15 minutes scanning cloudy skies, they learned the planes had not left New York.

The delegation was headed by Thomas F. Littlepage, president of the Washington Chamber of Commerce and general of the District army, and Miss Etta Taggart, lieutenant general.

Earlier in the day six Army planes, carrying Blue Eagles and other NRA insignias, landed at Bolling Field to refuel, and then continued South. Three of the planes headed for Atlanta and the three others for Jacksonville, their take-off from New York officially heralding the start of the NRA drive.

Bolt Strikes in Crowd Of Children; 2 Killed

Coutances, France, Aug. 11 (AP).—Lightning striking in the midst of 150 children, who were performing setting-up exercises today at a vacation camp at Gouville-Sur-Mer, hurled all of them to the ground, fatally killed a 12-year-old boy and instantly killed the 19-year-old instructor.

Seventeen of the children were bruised severely by the rushing wind in the ensuing panic. A sudden violent clap of thunder accompanied the bolt.

Forest Army's March Spoils Virginia Woodland Speakeasy

Beech Tree Where "Moon" Was Exchanged Is Just a Tree Now.

Government officials who select the sites for reforestation camps always are careful about water supply and drainage, but it seems they overlooked one item down in the Old Dominion.

The camp at Sperryville, Va., is an example. It is on well-drained ground. It has a good spring in one corner. It even has a swimming hole 7 feet deep, one of the deepest reforestation pools in Virginia.

But one corner of the camp is shaded by a huge beech tree. Before the arrival of the reforestation workers, this tree was the center of the local bootlegging exchange. Still operators met here to gossip about prices and revenue agents and to peddle their wares. The advent of the Roosevelt reforesters ruined all this. The corn dew venders were annoyed, although they have grown accustomed now to trading elsewhere.

Incidentally, the leader of another Virginia mountain camp reported he and his brother officers were looked upon suspiciously when their camp was first established. The natives thought them revenue agents. This suspicion has been quelled, but how, he did not report.

Youth, 18, Is Convicted Of Murder in Arizona

Nogales, Ariz., Aug. 11 (AP).—George J. Shaughnessy, 18-year-old slayer of Lon Blankenship, Tucson auto dealer, was convicted of murder in the first degree today by Superior Judge Charles L. Hardy.

Sentence of either death or life imprisonment will be pronounced next Friday, the judge announced.

House Burned Proving System's Effectiveness

Cody, Wyo., Aug. 11 (AP).—Albert Trask sprinkled gasoline on a matress. He was showing a friend how he exterminated bedbugs. "It works 100 per cent," he boasted.

"Sometimes," he added, striking a match for illumination, "you have to look 'way back in 'em."

There was a puff of flame. Albert Trask and friend raced for the door. At a safe distance they watched Trask's log cabin burn to the ground.

"It works 100 per cent, all right," admitted the friend.

The Federal Diary

By George D. Riley

Tariffs Division, Commerce, who has been attending the London Economic Conference, is on his way home. He sailed from London yesterday.

We are glad to report that Miss Harriet M. Sweet, Commerce, is back on the job. Last week she was quite ill with an attack of appendicitis. Luckily, however, an operation was avoided and Miss Sweet is again "fit-as-a-fiddle."

Wedding bells are jingling over Commerce. Rumor is that W. Leroy Neubreck (*), Lumber Division, will walk the plank very shortly. Lucky boy?

Unlike some other "higher-up" ladies in the Government service, Miss Elsie Christen, of the Assistant Secretary's Office, Commerce, is not at all "hard-boiled." This attractive young lady is exceptionally well liked because of her cordial and pleasing disposition.

Miss Edna J. Lawrence, formerly of Domestic Commerce Division, Commerce, is now with the NRA.

John P. Simpson, chairman reinstatement committee, American Federation of Government Employees, is in town yesterday.

"The American Federation of Government Employees is gratified at the action of Chairman Mitchell, Civil Service Commission, in preparing a plan for civil service appeals."

"The records in our possession indicate that the vast majority of efficiency ratings and disciplinary actions in the Federal Government are honest and justifiable. However, in certain instances efficiency ratings were given, or disciplinary measures taken, which we are convinced would not stand the test of an appeal."

"We have in our records reports from a number of discharged employees who received a high efficiency rating, but whose rating was reduced from 10 to 20 points when a reduction in personnel was in prospect. The effect of this was to make dismissal inevitable."

"The action of the Civil Service Commission in arranging a plan for civil service appeals is in strict conformity with the assurance given by President Roosevelt at a conference held with him recently by the president of the American Federation of Labor and a committee representing the American Federation of Government Employees."

"The American Federation of Government Employees, in common with all organizations affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, pledges its support of any measures looking to the protection of the Government workers."

United States Civil Service Commission announces 1,500 application blanks for jobs of male senior laborer and male junior laborer will be distributed by the commission at the Government Fuel Yards garage, Half and L streets southeast, beginning at 8 a. m. August 17. Only 1,500 blanks will be distributed.

After the blanks have been filled out they must be filed at the office of the Civil Service Commission, Seventh and F streets northwest, not later than August 25.

Examination is to fill vacancies in the various departments and independent establishments in Washington, D. C., and vicinity.

The entrance salary is $1,200 a year for senior laborer and $1,080 a year for junior laborer, less a deduction of not to exceed 15 per cent as a measure of economy and a retirement deduction of 3 1/2 per cent.

Applicants must have reached their eighteenth birthday not later than August 25, the date of the close of receipt of applications, except that these age limits are waived for persons granted military preference.

Applicants will be rated on a physical examination, which will include the shouldering of a sack and contents weighing 125 pounds.

Gold Miner Finds Mother Lode Vein

Utmost Secrecy Surrounds Trip for $9,030 Bank Robbery Suspect.

Virginia City, Mont., Aug. 11 (AP).—The Mother Lode, mystical matron in whose old and died in thousands of mines and placer holes of the West, is found!

At least Robert Garrison, one of those who long has sought the source of placer gold, said he made the discovery late today in a shaft at Old Baldy Mountain.

And hundreds of persons, called by Garrison's cry of "pay dirt" are hurrying to the mine to see for themselves the ore which Garrison says is producing gold at the rate of $15 to $100 to the cubic yard.

In 70 years $150,000,000 was taken from Alder Gulch, but never was a discovery made after the first, one by Hugh White. Garrison and the mining company believe their discovery is as great as his and that the Mother Lode which showered out flakes of gold for miners to pan, has at last been traced to her mountain hideaway.

Engineer Has "Lake" In Which He Sleeps

Oklahoma City, Aug. 11 (AP).—Lewis Bell sleeps in a lake these hot August nights. It's atop a downtown office building, for which he is engineer. He keeps 2 inches of water on the roof, which is walled in. Each night he wades to his bed, right in the middle of the "lake." He says the water keeps the temperature 15 degrees cooler.

Farms for Wage Earners.

For a number of years Henry Ford and some other industrial leaders have advocated decentralization of industry. Mr. Ford especially has painted glowing word pictures of contented families living in rural surroundings and working at least part time in adjacent factories. Under this plan the average workman would become an amateur farmer, raising food for his own table and perhaps feed for his cow and chickens. The idea has a strong appeal for many families that are confined to tenement districts.

It has been determined that the Government will launch an experiment of this kind with the funds set aside by Congress for the promotion of "subsistence homesteads." Secretary Ickes has announced that this money will not be used to establish unemployed workmen on commercial farms where they might swell agricultural overproduction. Rather he contemplates a "rural-urban arrangement" whereby industrial workers may be given the opportunity to live on plots of land, near their place of employment, sufficient to produce gardens and part of their family living. Suburban colonies of this nature, the Secretary says, may be established near several industrial centers.

It will be interesting to watch this experiment from the viewpoints of industry, the workman and the farmer. Obviously, any widespread decentralization of industry will depend upon the willingness of large corporations to move their factories to rural areas. Is mass production compatible with distribution of factory units over large areas? The engineer, the economist and the business executive as well as the sociologist will have to pass judgment upon this undertaking before it can be expected to materialize.

For the present, however, the objective seems to be the establishment of suburban colonies of workmen near large cities. Land suitable for farming is usually scarce in such localities, and if settlements of this type are too far removed from centers of employment, transportation becomes a major problem. The time required for traveling to and from work reduces the time available for work in the home garden. The expense of travel may offset savings on the grocery bill.

If suburban part-time farmers should become numerous, commercial truck gardeners might find it difficult to make a living. Even though the part-time farmers might not compete with the growers of staple crops, their efforts would certainly reduce the market for foodstuffs. Then, too, there is a question as to how many men will be inclined to divide their efforts between factory work and small-scale farming. The experiment about to be launched by the Department of the Interior should be both interesting and enlightening.

Separating Highway Traffic.

In several communities efforts are being made to persuade State highway authorities to divide new highways, so that there will be a complete separation of traffic moving in opposite directions. This divisional system is already in effect on some important highways, notably on the Black Horse Pike in New Jersey, and an official study of traffic reveals that accidents have been reduced in number as compared with traffic on such highways as that between Trenton and Elizabeth. This is a broad super-highway, where high speed is permissible. An analysis of accidents along that road in 1932 indicates that 30 per cent of the collisions and "sideswipes" would not have occurred if two separate lanes of traffic had been provided.

Excessive cost makes it impracticable to eliminate hills and curves, even upon super-highways. Some of the most disastrous accidents occur on the crest of hills, where motorists traveling in opposite directions are unable to see what is coming. Inexperienced drivers often insist upon overtaking slower cars as they approach the brow of a hill. Oncoming drivers from the opposite direction, driving at great speed, have no opportunity to avoid a collision when they encounter two or more cars occupying all the roadway.

A large part of the $400,000,000 allotted to highway projects in the Public Works act will be devoted to construction of super-highways and boulevards, for the purpose of expediting through traffic. With comparatively small cost new roads can be divided into two traffic lanes. The division should not consist merely of a white line, which motorists frequently disregard, but should be a complete separation of the two lanes.

More Relief Funds Needed.

Although the cost of unemployment relief fell 8.4 per cent in 43 cities during July, there was a decrease of only 1.2 per cent of families "on relief."

The Government, States and cities are paying out about $25,000,000 a month for the relief of more than 1,000,000 families. Some of the States are providing two-thirds of the relief funds, and are thus entitled to one-third from the Government. Other States are lagging or shuffling off the entire burden upon the Government. Private relief agencies are slackening their contributions, and are now bearing only about one-tenth of the burden which they formerly bore almost entirely.

Harry L. Hopkins, Federal Relief Administrator, announces that grants to the States aggregate $113,044,309. He has advised Kentucky, Colorado, Texas, West Virginia and Ohio to redouble their efforts to provide for their own people. Some of the States will receive no more money from the Federal administration unless they make a better showing. Mr. Hopkins gives warning that at least $1,000,000,000 will be needed to carry destitute families through the winter. This means that $500,000,000 should be raised by the States and their communities.

Discrepancies between the number of families relieved and the rate of disbursement for relief were numerous during July, and the Federal administration is unable to account for them. In Atlanta the number of families on relief decreased 3 per cent, while the cost of relief increased 17.5 per cent. In New York City the number of families on relief increased 10 per cent, but relief costs decreased 13.1 per cent. In Chicago the number of destitute families and the cost of relief decreased. The number of families on relief increased 15.5 per cent in San Francisco, 14.6 per cent in Milwaukee, 12.1 per cent in Washington, 8.4 per cent in Houston, 4.4 per cent in Newark, 3.8 per cent in Jacksonville, and 2.5 per cent in Phoenix.

The total decrease of families on relief in 43 cities is believed by Mr. Hopkins to be the result of readjustments in the relief situation, consequent upon transfer of the work from private organizations to the States. He is unable to report definitely that the decline in relief needs is due to improved economic conditions, and expresses the opinion that unless the States provide $500,000,000 there will be great suffering next winter.

Into Shenandoah Park.

Surveys have been completed and the money is available with which to construct that portion of the Skyline Drive between Front Royal and Panoram, in Shenandoah National Park. The National Park Service, however, is unwilling to proceed with this work until all the private lands in the park have been acquired by the United States. Of the 160,000 acres under condemnation proceedings only a small part is in controversy, and efforts are being made by the State of Virginia and the Federal authorities to speed up the proceedings. Within a short time it is expected that Shenandoah National Park will belong in its entirety to the nation. Then construction of the Skyline Drive will open up this magnificent mountain region to all tourists and vacationers. The drive will extend along the mountain crest from Front Royal to Waynesboro, a distance of about 100 miles. Construction of about 40 miles of the drive has been completed.

In the meantime co-operation of the Federal Government and the State of Virginia is called for in constructing that portion of the John Marshall highway between Gainesville and Front Royal. The road would connect with the Lee highway at Gainesville, and thus a direct entrance into Shenandoah National Park would be available for the people of Washington and all northern cities. The John Marshall highway would extend through Haymarket, Thoroughfare Gap, Broad Run, The Plains, Marshall, and thence through the estate of Chief Justice John Marshall via Linden to Front Royal. Ultimately it is proposed to develop the John Marshall highway into a national road to the Pacific coast. It would include the Skyline Drive and would connect with the Valley Pike No. 11 at Strasburg.

By early construction of the John Marshall highway to Front Royal much time would be saved in making Shenandoah National Park available to northern visitors. It is a link in the most direct route from New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington into the great recreation area which has been set apart for the people of this section of the Atlantic coast.

Factory Air in New York.

New York knows that industrial activity is increasing because the city atmosphere is getting dirtier. The Meteorological Observatory in Central Park finds that air pollution in the metropolis is greater than at any time during the last three years. New York may have other methods of determining the rate of the business of business, but when the amount of solid matter in a cubic mile of circumambient ether exceeds a ton and a half Father Knickerbocker knows that more factories are getting busy.

That is what happened last month. The defilement of the municipal breathing material increased .15 per cent. New Yorkers didn't object. They have used urban air when it was soot-saturated in comparison. A smoky tang to the atmosphere is evidence that more people are at work. Between the encouraging aroma from the chimneys and watching the smoke of the stock exchange New York, aided by a few up-staters, has put more than 50,000 automobiles back on the roads, including quite a bunch of new cars.

The Central Park record of air pollution is evidently a pretty faithful indication of the production level in the metropolitan area. In July, 1933, New York air was begrimed to the extent of 3.52 tons per cubic mile; in 1931, 1.38 tons; in 1932,

1.21 tons, while last month the figure rose to 1.59 tons. The increase in air pollution has kept steady pace with the growing industrial output of recent months, just as it declined as the effects of the depression were felt in past years. The amount of solid matter in the air varies, naturally, with the weather and hours of the day, the worst conditions occurring in the early morning hours when factory fires are started. On July 7 at 5 a. m. pollution reached 5.88 tons per cubic mile of air.

Pitching Horseshoes.

With the crowning of an international champion in Chicago and the formation in New York of a metropolitan league, the ancient sport of horseshoe pitching appears to have come out of the barnyard. It has been a rustic pastime for so long that many have not noted its insidious advance upon the cities and its invasion of social circles.

At the five-day tournament held in Chicago last week 20,000 enthusiasts attended. The historic champions of Kansas and Iowa were defeated by Theodore Allen, of California, when he set a world's record of 73.5 per cent riggers. New York now boasts of hundreds of expert pitchers, and nearly a score of clubs have been organized to popularize the sport. A horseshoe pitching contest has been arranged for Jones Beach, on Long Island, which is expected to give the new movement quite a boost.

Styles in sports grow and change. Pitching horseshoes is said to date from the days of the Greek discus throwers. While tournaments have long been held at Kansas City and St. Petersburg, Fla., the present expansion of the game is recent. From the contests behind the firehouse between smoke eaters and policemen, horseshoe pitching has been taken up by school and college clubs. The metropolitan league has even installed an office in the Woolworth building, with a secretary.

The Jones Beach contest will be participated in by a cosmopolitan list of contenders. Not only farmers and firemen, but bankers, brokers and schoolboys will take part. The present champion of the New York area is an eighteen-year-old schoolboy of Rahway, N. J. Women also have taken up the game, and Secretary Larsen has hopes of interesting the Junior League, just as his enthusiasm envisages a crying demand for an international tournament at Madison Square Garden next winter.

Latin-American politicians suffering from Monroe Doctrine phobia will be personally offended if the United States doesn't intervene in Cuba.

If the Government and agriculture will take in Nature as a partner there will be a better chance of adjusting production to demand.

Premier Mussolini has just laid the corner stone of "the first planned city in the world." What about Washington?

Another month, and the public appetite will give a powerful boost to prosperity if the oyster will cooperate.

Chivalry of Work.

From the Texas Weekly.

Ninety years ago, there was published in England a remarkable book by Thomas Carlyle. It was entitled "Past and Present" and its object, according to its author, was "to awaken here and there a slumbering blockhead to rub his eyes and consider what he is about in God's creation." It was published at a time when "hundreds of thousands of men were out of work and starving," and it called upon the "captains of industry" to do something about it.

We recall this book at this time because much of it has a strangely contemporary sound, in view of what has been happening in this country during the past few months. In many respects, it seems to speak directly to American employers, summoning them to support the President's recovery program. For one thing, it invoked a "war psychology," proposing the marshaling of labor in industry as "a moral equivalent for war." And for another thing, it proposed a new code of ethics for the "captains of this army, the 'captains of industry,' if you please, a 'chivalry' to take the place of the 'chivalry' of the warrior.

It was a most amazing thing, said Carlyle, that men could be organized into a perfect machine to kill other men. "Strange, interesting, and yet most mournful to reflect upon," he said. "Was this, then, of all things mankind had some talent for, the one thing important to learn well, and bring to perfection, this of successfully killing one another?" Why could not men be organized to conquer the real enemies of mankind? "Oh, heavens," he exclaimed, "if we saw an army . . . maintained and fully equipped, in continual and real action and battle against human starvation, against chaos, against stupidity and our real 'natural enemies,' what a business were it!"

He called upon the "captains of industry" to undertake such warfare. "Government can do much," he declared, "but it can in no wise do all. The main substance of this problem . . . will have to be solved by those who stand practically in the middle of it; by those who themselves work and preside over work."

"The leaders of industry," he said, "if industry is to be led, are virtually the captains of the world." He called upon the leaders of industry to create a new chivalry for themselves.

"No working world," continued Carlyle, "any more than a fighting world, can be led without a noble chivalry of work, and laws and fixed rules which follow out of that—far nobler than any chivalry of fighting ever was. . . . Captains of industry are the true fighters, henceforth recognizable as the only true ones; fighters against chaos, necessity and the devils and jottins; and lead mankind in that great, and alone true, and universal warfare; the stars in their courses fighting for them, and all heaven and earth saying audibly, 'Well done!'"

MUSSOLINI AND THE DENTIST.
"Premier Benito Mussolini is without fear in a dental chair."—News item.

Dentist (as the premier enters)—Good morning. It is a nice day, is it?

Mussolini—It ought to be; I ordered it.

Dentist (quite fidgety)—Are your teeth giving you trouble?

Mussolini (indignantly)—Teeth giving Mussolini trouble? They wouldn't dare. I just came in to show 'em who's boss, that's all.

Dentist—Which one do you wish to—intimidate first, excellency?

Mussolini (indicating)—This one. It had the audacity to keep me awake all night.

Dentist (wishing he had taken up some other profession)—This is going to hurt you a little, I am afraid.

Mussolini (glaring)—If it hurts me, you'd better be afraid!

Dentist—Do you wish to take gas?

Mussolini—Gas? Mussolini, the premier of Italy, take gas? Are you serious?

Dentist—A little cocaine, then, to deaden the pain?

Mussolini (in his best manner)—What pain?

Dentist (now a victim of the big jitters)—Any possible pain, sir.

Mussolini (glaring)—I do not fear pain, particularly possible pain. And I might add that I do not expect any.

Dentist (feebly)—I understand, excellency.

Mussolini (as the dentist begins to probe his profession)—This is a fine of nothing. The man does not live who can make him wince.

Dentist (dropping the probe abruptly)—Quite so, sir.

Mussolini (as the dentist shuffles about his tools)—What are you looking for?

Dentist—Who? Me?

Mussolini—You heard me.

Dentist (deciding to take a chance with a drill)—This is just a small drill. I shall be very careful with it.

Mussolini (glowering)—Drill? Bah! I defy it. I laugh at it!

Dentist (very shaky)—Yes, sir.

Mussolini—Yes, sir, what?

Dentist—Just yes, sir.

Mussolini (as he opens his mouth)—Remember, Mussolini is yet to be hurt by anything.

Dentist (absent-mindedly)—Yet? Mussolini—Yet!

Dentist (near a complete collapse)—Bay rum or witch hazel?

Mussolini (only human and just as well pleased that the dentist has gone cuckoo)—Just come it dry!

AN OLD LAW.

Death for kidnapping, the sentence meted out to the abductor of Mary McElroy, is not a new penalty for that particular crime in this country, says the Louisville Courier-Journal. Under a law of March 1, 1865, promulgated by the Duke of York for the colony of New Amsterdam, it was provided that "if any person forcibly steal or carry off away any man or mankind, he shall be put to death."

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to His Red-Headed Daughter

By Robert Quillen.

MY DEAR LOUISE: I am writing you this in behalf of a few much abused adjectives, such as "darling," "lovely" and "awful." Why work them so hard when the dictionary is full of words that would serve you better?

In a recent newspaper article, Arthur Brisbane expressed disapproval of all adjectives. But Alexander Woollcott, who uses words more skillfully than any other American writer, gets all of his effects by inserting an eloquent adjective now and then.

Read this paragraph of his from the New Yorker. He is telling how his godchild and other tots behaved at a circus.

"A dejected fox-terrier, accompanying one of the lesser clowns along the sawdust trail, paused for a moment in front of them and stood sadly on its head. At this modest achievement the children were beside themselves with excitement."

Now read it again without the adjectives and adverbs and see how dull it seems. Without adjectives it is a prosaic report of facts; with adjectives it becomes a picture. You can see it.

That is the whole story. A writer is an artist at words are his brush strokes. Without adjectives his work is black and white; adjectives are dashes of color that make the picture alive and real.

What is true of writing is true of speaking, for writing is merely speech set down on paper.

Examine the speech of your acquaintances the next time you are in a group. You will discover that the speaker who gains the most attentive hearing is the one who uses the right adjectives where they should be used.

It isn't a difficult art. It is merely a matter of telling the truth.

You never hear anybody describe a dish of ice cream as "charming" or a cantaloupe as "elegant," but such absurdities would be no worse than the common practice of using "darling" or "awful" to describe everything from bathing suits to sunsets.

It is laziness that makes people talk that way—mental laziness. Please don't let the habit fester. If you wish to say a flower is pretty or music entrancing or a costume gorgeous, don't say it is "swell." Swell is useful, but it can't take the place of language.

Speech isn't worth much when the same word must picture a movie, a dance, a dinner and the boy who pays for them.

Why wear the same frock on all occasions if you have many that fit better? Love, DAD.

Comment of the Press

How Keep Prices in Line?

Kansas City Times.

Months ago, from the outset of the recovery program and before the code development stage had been reached, there was the recognized danger that prices might outrun consumer purchasing power.

That not only would be a serious threat to recovery itself, but it would involve deep injustice to the public. The peril seemed to be imminent as production of finished goods and prices of grain, cotton and other raw materials shot ahead of employment and wage increases.

It was then that the blanket code was resorted to in a hasty effort to balance up the situation.

But the problem of prices, including sporadic attempts at profiteering, still remains. It is as desirable as before to establish and maintain farm prices at profitable levels, yet at the same time to prevent undue increases anywhere along the line to the consumer.

The solution is not price-fixing, either by the Government directly or by permission extended industries in codes of fair competition. This, it now seems, has been definitely rejected. An alternative is being taken by the farm act administration.

Its methods are full price information to the public, reliance upon voluntary cooperation of private business and only such use of legal action as may be demanded by occasional attempts at selfish and undue advantage.

Canada's Wheat.

Montreal Star.

To what extent reduced crops will influence the wheat-growing countries in their plan for the control of cultivation and export can not very well be determined at the present time. It is quite likely, however, that it may have a very considerable effect upon their final agreement. Providence and the weather have interfered before now to upset man's best laid schemes.

We shall have to await the outcome of both the crop and the wheat concord before we can see very clearly ahead. But in the meantime we have not much to seriously worry about, when we look elsewhere, since all indications point to Canada's securing the larger share of the world's wheat trade.

The Pan-American Conference.

Louisville Courier-Journal.

Back from the London Economic Conference, which he saved from collapse and to which he looks for concrete results if the resumption of the parleys, Cordell Hull turns to the preparations for another international gathering of almost equal importance. In his conversations with President Roosevelt, the Secretary of State discussed the forthcoming Pan-American conference at Montevideo as well as the meeting in London. It was intimated in the news dispatches that Mr. Hull would head the American delegation to the Uruguayan capital and that tariffs and trade barriers which had been excluded from the agenda of the December assembly would probably be made an important topic of discussion.

Along the Potomac

With

Carlisle Barger

THERE was a little paragraph in yesterday's papers that must have caused a yearning in the heart of every man who has given serious thought to what we have been through the last three years and what we are going through now. There were hardly more than three sentences in the paragraph; yet it must have fascinated a lot of men, must have held their eyes glued to it with a reluctance to lay it down, while the mind's fancy roamed over green pastures and rippling brooks, over a hammock under a spreading elm and the mooing of the cows on the other side of the paling fence.

In short, it brought a picture of contentment and rest, of being out of the city and in the country, so to speak, away from the tinnitulations of the depression and the subsequent era of brain trusts and experimenters.

It was a little story saying that Former Secretary of Agriculture Jardine had resigned as minister to Egypt and is coming home.

I SNT that an easing, soothing thing, a sedative for tired nerves? Not that Mr. Jardine is coming home, but that he has been away, off by himself enjoying life, all the while that the rest of us have been steadily pressed toward the home for nervous ailments.

He was Mr. Coolidge's secretary of agriculture, don't you remember? After Mr. Hoover came in he went away to Egypt as minister. It is my recollection that he went away even before the stock market crash, which was the official beginning of the depression. He has been away all this time, over there in Egypt, with not a thing in the world to worry about, with the steadfastness and sturdiness of the sphinx to contemplate and give him peace of soul and of mind. Over there where the only storm has been that of the desert sands. I am taking my knowledge of the country from the movies and I do hope they haven't put me wrong.

BUT think of the man; let your envy have free play. He hasn't been through a single one of our recoveries or our prosperities around the corner. He knows nothing about the era of codification. When he hears about it he probably will think an NRA insignia is something the girls wear.

What a surprise and a bewilderment he is coming back to. When he left, the sociologists and professors were still in school, or writing for high-brow magazines. Now he will be met at customs by a collegiate cheer.

Why in the name of goodness he wants to come back to be sociologized and codified is something difficult to understand. To him, the peace and contentment of Egypt to the maelstrom of minute men and snipers will be a transformation that will linger long in the mind of the man.

SOME of his friends should write him before he leaves. He should tell him, Christian Science Churches.

"Soul" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all the Churches of Christ, Scientist, tomorrow. The Golden Text is from Psalm xlii:2, "My soul thirsteth for God, for the living God." Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "I will bless the Lord at all times; his praise shall continually be in my mouth. My soul shall make her boast in the Lord: the humble shall hear thereof, and be glad. O magnify the Lord with me, and let us exalt his name together." (Psalm xxxiv:1-3.)

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science Text Book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Soul and Spirit being one, God and Soul are one, and this one never included in a limited mind or a limited body."

"Spirit is eternal, divine. Nothing but a spirit, Soul, can evolve life, for Spirit is more than all else. Because Soul is immortal, it does not exist in mortality." (Page 335.)

2-Cent Stamp Back in Year, Says Official

Growing Volume of Mail Will End Danger of Deficit.

Pasadena, Calif., Aug. 11 (AP).—The volume of mail, which declined "until very recently," is now increasing steadily, Clinton B. Eilenberger, Third Assistant Postmaster General, said here today.

"It is our expectation that by next July it will be possible to return to a uniform 2-cent rate on all first class mail without danger to the Postoffice Department's financial situation," Mr. Eilenberger said in an address for delivery before the California Postmasters Association convention.

Postal savings have grown during the depression, Mr. Eilenberger said, from about $150,000,000 to more than $1,000,000,000. The number of depositors has increased from 500,000 to more than 2,000,000.

A Well-Big Grand Slam.

PROBABLY one of the best examples I have yet seen of the value of the Four-Five No-Trump Convention in reaching Grand Slam contracts occurred in a recent championship tournament. Although the hand in question was an absolute spread for about 15 tricks, most of the teams playing it failed to reach the contract of seven-odd due to their inability to locate all of the key cards—that is, all four Aces and the King of trumps. Through the use of the Four-Five No-Trump Convention, the North player, holding but a little over three honor tricks, was able to jump from four no-trump to a grand slam.

The bidding: (Figures after bids refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

North	South
1♠	1♠
3♠(1)	4NT(2)
7♠(3)	Pass

1—North is almost strong enough to bid four Spades. However, with only a plus value in Hearts, no honors in Diamonds and lacking the Ace of Clubs, he decided to bid only three and thereby give his partner a little leeway.

2—South was definitely short of a forcing bid on the first round. However, when his partner sees one Spade call, he knows a slam is probably in sight. His three Aces loom very large, and there is no better way for South to tell his partner that he holds them than by bidding four no-trump.

3—North gets the message perfectly. A four no-trump bid affirms the possession of either two Aces and the King of a bid suit or three Aces. Since North himself has both the King of Clubs and the King of Spades, he immediately knows that South has the three Aces. In addition, he knows that South is in order to bid one Spade must have either five to the Queen, or, at the very worst, five to the Knave. Therefore, North can be certain that even with the worst possible holding in the South hand, a break in trumps will assure the slam; but it is more than probable that South has the Queen of Spades or a six-card suit, in which case the slam will be an absolute lay-down. His seven-spade bid is not even close and was made without a second's hesitation. The inference that he was able to make from his partner's four no-trump bid enabled him to count six Club tricks, five trump tricks and two outside Aces with only the bare possibility of a trump loser.

Although this grand slam can possibly be reached without the use of the Four-Five No-Trump Convention, it is most difficult. If South is unable to show his Aces whole-sale, North will never be able to contract for the grand slam safely because there is the very strong danger that South, no matter how strong his bidding may be, will have the King-Queen of Diamonds instead of the Ace.

Mrs. Coolidge May Take Up Winter Home Here; Make Trio of Presidents' Widows

Long List of Former White House Mistresses Lived in Washington.

Dolly Madison Set Precedent for Return, Held "Court" Many Years.

By Elizabeth E. Poe.

Washingtonians returning from New England holidays bring the welcome news that Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, widow of the late President, is planning to spend part of next winter in the National Capital.

Mrs. Coolidge left a real impression on the social life here. Her return, even for a part of each year, not only will be in keeping with the traditions of a Washington residence for presidential widows, but will add another outstanding personality to the growing number of national notables who make their homes here and find it the most fascinating spot in the country.

Mrs. Coolidge, should she carry out her intention and take up a Washington residence, will be the third of a trio of presidential widows now living in Washington. The other women are Mrs. William Howard Taft and Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, second wife of the great World War President.

While not a widow, of course, Washington cherishes the hope that Mrs. Hoover may visit the Capital some time in the coming year. As a householder, with an imposing menage on S street, now occupied by Senator Walcott, it is natural that Mrs. Hoover might return here for a time, even though the former President does not leave the classic precincts of Palo Alto, hard by Leland Stanford, the Hoover's alma mater.

Mrs. Roosevelt, Sr., Infrequent Visitor.

Strange to say, more than 25 years elapsed between the March day in 1909 when Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, Sr., looked out on Washington through blinding snow on Taft's inauguration to the day in August, 1932, when she came to the National Capital as the guest of President and Mrs. Hoover for the notification of his resignation as the candidate of the Republican party for the Presidency.

Since leaving the White House in 1909, and the subsequent death of Theodore Roosevelt in 1919, Mrs. Roosevelt has become an inveterate globe trotter. Last year she visited her son, Theodore Roosevelt, when he was governor-general of the Philippines, and extended her travels afterward to China and Japan.

Always gracious and elegant in the best sense of that word, Mrs. Roosevelt sets a high example for other retired First Ladies of the Land. Last week she celebrated her seventy-second birthday at Oyster Bay, surrounded by mementoes of her husband's valor and fame.

Dolly Madison Set Precedent.

It was at the opening of the nineteenth century that vivacious Dolly Madison, the most glamorous of all White House chaperones, set the precedent of returning to Washington on the part of former mistresses of the Executive Mansion.

After the death of James Madison at Montpelier, ripe in years and honors, Dolly longed for the cosmopolitan life and her multitude of friends in Washington. She came here at the age of 65 and occupied what is now the Cosmos Club on Lafayette Square.

There Dolly held court in her faded velvet gown and high turban as poverty crept upon her. It was a second White House and although Dolly had to wear the same black velvet gown for state occasions for nearly a score of years, no one thought of her clothes. The great and good clamored for invitations to her afternoon teas.

Remember the old-time "sitting room" with a large table in the middle of the floor holding the lamp around which the family grouped?

Such a good-sized occasional table is important in the modern living room, too. Though it occupies a modest place against the wall, in the living room, such a table is, of course, a necessity. And most women find that the drop-leaf kind is most suitable.

The butterfly table at the bottom in the illustration is graceful and very practical. It's in maple, with stretchers.

And it can open up wide enough to serve six for dinner, or drop its leaves and take a convenient place against the wall or behind the sofa.

Duncan Phyfe Table.

If you want a mahogany or walnut drop-leaf table you'll probably like the Duncan Phyfe type. This has an out-of-the-way column base and four metal-tipped spread legs. It fits into any room with eighteenth century English or Federal American furnishings. Or it might even be used with simple French or Queen Anne things.

The Molly Pitcher is another good drop-leaf type, having four shaped legs with claw and ball feet. This table, too, goes with many of the popular period furnishings.

Drum-Top Table.

But if you haven't the eating problem to consider, drop leaves are not necessary. That drum table at the center of the illustration is one of the best remedies we know of for a dull corner.

Put a lamp and a few books on it, or a bowl of flowers—pull up a couple of chairs—and you'll discover you've made a charming group in your living room. Or you might put it before a group of windows—an admirable show place for its lovely silhouette.

The sofa table at the top in the illustration is labeled eighteenth century English by its curved legs and general proportions. It makes it a good companion for Duncan Phyfe and other Federal-American furniture. Its shape fits it for use behind a sofa. But it's been known to break a long, awkward wall space effectively, holding a pair of lamps.

The permanent game table is another type that's now seen in many planned-for-comfort living rooms. It has four solid legs which don't collapse under it. And it's all dressed up like a good little girl to stay in the living room. These game tables come in period designs and in mahogany, walnut or painted finish.

Oil Massages Stop Wrinkles Caused by Sun

Beauty Expert Advises Use of Gloves to Protect Hands in Summer.

By Elsie Pierce.

In the "good old summer time" it is so much easier to keep the hands soft and smooth than at any other season.

No cold, biting winds to chafe the skin, make the hands red and rough. In fact, with the warm weather causing the oil glands to function more rapidly, this very oil nourishes the skin, keeping it free from any coarseness or wrinkling.

In spite of all that, a great many women find that at the end of the summer their hands present a far from attractive appearance.

Roughness, discoloration, hard corners, callous spots, rough, broken cuticles, hangnails are there to mar the beauty of the hands. And all these definite signs of neglect do not add any to the peace of mind of the owner.

Too Much Sun Drying.

The hands can be burned by too much sunning. Constant exposure exhausts the natural oils of hands and nails. The nails may become brittle and begin to break. The cuticle becomes jagged.

If the hands are constantly exposed to the sun, they should have oil and more oil—olive oil or odorless castor oil or lanolin or cocoa butter or any similar cream rich in oil—to replace the natural oils exhausted by exposure.

A daily massage at bedtime with a heavy cream is an excellent preventive measure. Even if the hands don't seem to need it, this massage will keep the skin soft and smooth, warding off coarseness, a heavy, leathery look or hand wrinkles.

These are as definitely signs of age by the way, as facial wrinkles. Give the nails their nightly warm oil soaking right through the summer, too. Keep the cuticle pushed back, gently but firmly, with towel and orange stick.

Gloves for Sports.

To avoid the callous spots that usually follow in the wake of a round of golf or a set of tennis, an hour's roving or similar sports, give the hands a generous creaming and massage beforehand to keep the skin soft.

And wear gloves for sports. Soft canvas gloves or thin fabric gloves with the tops or the fingers cut off make excellent sports gloves. An odd pair that has been laundered several times and is soft and pliable will not be bulky and at the same time will protect the hands from callous spots and coarsening.

Four Corners of World Contribute Delicious Foodstuffs

New Freezing System Aids Menu Makers

Cosmopolitan Dining Room Is Attractive Contrast to Work-a-Day World.

By Ann Davis.
Make the four corners of the world your market place.

Buy your poultry from Texas, steaks from Montana, strawberries from Florida, peas from Oregon, mushrooms from Pennsylvania, or any other meat, fruit or vegetable from the region which produces the best. Serve these fresh on your table no more touched by time than an hour after they were selected.

It's hard to believe, but it's true indeed. Science has again achieved the seemingly impossible. More than one hundred varieties of foodstuffs are specially processed by a quick freezing method that simply arrests the progress of time in its effects on the products.

These foods have banished seasons. Raspberries are as fresh and delicious in December as in July. Oysters may be eaten with perfect safety throughout the summer months.

What a boon, what a saving to the housekeeper! You may go to the phone, call the grocery store, tell you who he is and order your whole dinner. When it comes there's no bother. Each item is ready for the stove. No clipping and trimming of meats, no sorting and picking over the vegetables, and no doubt about the freshness and perfection of any course.

Jasmine Tea.

Tea with a flowery flavor tempts. Blame it on the jasmine. Not contented with being pretty to look at and fragrant besides, it must needs join hands with tea, and claim an extraordinary taste. Medium jar, 35 cents.

Arabia, Spain and Mexico, all rolled into one—five minutes from F street. When you're down town shopping and find you're with weary feet, stroll over to New York avenue, climb a short flight of stairs and find yourself in a world transformed. You may sit in a low lighted room, in the midst of palms and imagine yourself in a calypso's palace. Overhead a high ceiling, with lights like twinkling stars in a field of blue. On each side adobe walls and mysterious grates windows.

Or if you prefer a Mayan atmosphere, have your luncheon in a small Mexican room, whose walls are striking with bas relief Aztec figures and ancient symbols. The windows are squarely cut, following the true architecture of the period.

The concert trio, entertaining you with tangoes and rumbas while you dine, plays in an ornate Moorish room. The walls and ceilings are fantastically carved in ivory tones. Along one side Byzantine arches open out on to a desert scene, illuminated with mellow lights, ranging from the deepest purple to the faintest bluish green.

On the other hand, if the shopper is from way down South in Dixie there's a place in the heart of town which can gratify her most Southern whim. Hot spoon bread, literally swimming in butter, takes you back to the days when the And corn sticks like Auntie who ever you had at your house used to make.

During luncheon, look what's passed around! Piping hot biscuits! Help yourself. Believe it or not (apologies to Mr. Ripley) they serve a fried chicken dinner, with mash potatoes, slaw, tomatoes, string beans and toast—for 25 cents!

Southern cooking in a cool place. Don't miss it!

Tasty Tempters.

Atmosphere, however, is not enough for the hungry shopper. Nor need it be. The menu is tempting enough to satisfy the most capricious appetite. On the 55-cent special luncheon are several tempters:

Cold Maryland ham and terrine of foie gras, vegetables and potato salad.

Poached fillet of flounder with lettuce, au vauite au gratin.

Shrimp, crab cake and celery salad, coleslaw, dressing.

Spaghetti and chile mae.

Poached egg with ham and English muffins, Benedict.

French vegetable salad with egg, tomato, and Russian dressing.

Fruit salad with alligator pears, mayonnaise.

Any of these with a choice of tea, coffee or milk.

High above the city street, on the tenth floor of a large hotel is an inside garden, a delightful rendezvous for diners. A wisteria arbor over the entrance arch—at the far end of the room a rose trellis with lilac bushes on either side—green trees against the walls—gladioli at each window—ferns and palms around the orchestra stand—Hawaiian music—smartly dressed diners—an atmosphere of cool and comfort. Every day a different menu, designed to suit a wide variety of tastes.

Melons in Gelatine Vary Dessert Menu

Large Quantities of Very Good Quality Honeydew Melons on Market.

The flavor of the fine supply of cantaloupes and honeydew melons now on the market here makes all dishes utilizing this product worth considering at this time.

Besides being delicious chilled, portions of the melons may be used in various salads. One of the best combines melon balls in gelatin.

The recipe for this calls for one package of lime gelatin, one pint of warm water, one and one-half cups of cantaloupe or honeydew melon, cut in one-half-inch balls.

The first step in the preparation of this salad is to dissolve the lime gelatin in warm water. Then chill it. When slightly thickened, fold in melon balls. Turn into individual molds. Then chill until firm.

The salad should be unmolded on crisp lettuce and garnished with mayonnaise, or served plain as dessert.

It is advisable to use only firm, ripe, sweet melon. The salad made with these quantities serves six.

Cupid Scores At Meetings

Cupid finds conventions a happy hunting ground, as many a pair can attest.

Hardly a national gathering or convention goes by that a romance does not follow.

Miss Elsie Hill, who in private life is Mrs. M. Leavitt, wife of a Yale professor, met her husband as a result of a woman's party convention here.

Miss Hill met him while pleading for contributions. Clad in white, bronze hair a halo about her face, she made her speech.

A young man stood up in the audience and said:

"I'll give a hundred dollars—if you'll come here and get it."

Miss Hill got the hundred—and a husband.

Delicious Melons in Gelatin Salad

Combination of melon and gelatin makes delightful dish which may be served either as a salad or dessert. Unusually good flavor of melons at this time makes this a pleasant addition to summer-day menu.

Cucumber Combinations Appeal to Salad Makers

By Ann Barrett.

Get your cucumbers long and thin and green. Ice them thoroughly. Then when you bite into these snapping-crisp slices one of these hot August days, you'll have a new respect for that famous phrase, "cool as a cucumber." In fact, the green skin of a cucumber is so cool just to look at, I hate to peel it off. And the way this green skin blends into all kinds of salads is practically the making of them.

Here's one, for example, that I had the other night. A favorite of Anita Page, screen star. Paper-thin slices of cucumber and radish with sprigs of watercress and slivers of canned pineapple (well drained before adding to salad). All this tossed in just enough French dressing to give it a shimmer. And the French dressing hinting of garlic.

A-1 Cucumber Combinations.

Garlic with pineapple? Oh, well, if you don't like garlic—flavor really demands that you have some member of the onion family, too. For onion is to cucumber what the left glove is to the right. So is freshly ground pepper. If you haven't one of those famous little pep-up summer salad, here's what—and how!

Take two nice, medium-sized cucumbers and pare them. From one cucumber cut a slice 1 inch thick. Cut this into half-inch bits, put these in salt water and set at once in refrigerator. Then grate all the remaining cucumber and add to it

1/2 tablespoon vinegar, 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, 1/2 teaspoon salt, a few grains of cayenne pepper, 1 teaspoon minced onion, a drop of tabasco and 2 cups boiling water. Let stand till cold. Strain through cheesecloth. Next add 2 tablespoons gelatin (first soaked in 4 tablespoons cold water), then dissolve over hot water and a few drops of green coloring. Pour this mixture into a ring mold and let chill and set.

Meanwhile whip 1/2 cup cream and add 1 teaspoon minced chive or green onion top, a drop or two of onion juice and 1/4 teaspoon salt. Then drain and dry the baked cucumber and combine with this mixture. Finally unmold the jelly ring on a platter and fill the center with the cream mixture.

Sand for More Recipes.

Cucumbers—not only fresh, but pickled—play an important part in the making of various appetizers that are now so smart to serve as hand mills for grinding your pepper to order, mash some whole black peppers up fine with your rolling pin or wooden potato masher. It's not so hard as it sounds. And how the flavor will repay you!

Tomato is another good number with cucumber. So is cheese. Whether it's pot cheese on a cold plate with sliced cucumbers around it, or American cheese—teamed up with cucumbers in a sandwich. And while a cucumber can be had by hook or crook, no fish should be served without it.

De Luxe Cucumber Jelly.

Those are all every-day possibilities. But some day when you want to outdo yourself on an up-

'Thank-You' Is Hard Letter For Children

Acknowledgment of Gifts Important Lesson for Children to Learn.

By Alice Clarissa Richmond.

There is always the question of "thank-you" letters that your children fail to write.

An aunt or cousin sends a present, and some weeks afterward remarks coldly or bitingly, according to temperament, "I sent Sarah a little gift a while ago. Did she receive it? I have had no word of thanks."

You know that Sarah was told to write, maybe you remember seeing her set about doing it, but in the face of the statement that she has not, you are speechless.

Should Make Allowances.

Of course, people should realize that children forget and are careless. But they do not, and neither will the world later on, so for Sarah's own sake she must be taught at least to acknowledge gifts.

There is generally a real dislike for thank-you letters among children which has first to be broken down. The only treatment I know of for that is the plain statement of fact: "They took time and trouble about choosing and sending you a present, and the least you can do in return is to write a note of thanks."

Easy to Postpone.

Generally the child sees the reasonableness of this, and goes so far as to agree that the letter must be written. But the actual writing and sending is more difficult, and constant vigilance is needed to see that the letter once written is not laid aside to be found months later when its value is gone.

It takes years of training to accustom a child to this very commonplace of etiquette, because the effort to write letters is very great to one who has newly acquired the art of writing. But the reward is great when in their teens they suddenly assume the responsibility themselves, and you can once more meet relatives without fear and embarrassment in your soul.

Prize Winner Sends Recipe For Hot Bread

Sally Lunn Different From Ordinary Biscuits or Corn Breads.

A suggestion for this prize contest came with the winning entry this week when Mrs. Fay H. Callahan, of 1739 Euclid street northwest, sent with her recipe for Virginia sally lunn the following note:

"I am sending you an old family recipe for a delicious type of hot bread that has been undervalued, neglected for years. It is entirely different from the usual biscuits, rolls and corn breads, and is so easy to make that it is practically failure-proof. Serve it hot with plenty of butter and the family will greet it with cheers."

Mrs. Callahan has given the key-note for interesting entries. Search your family recipe books for old directions that have stood the test of time and enter them in this weekly contest. Five dollars is awarded each week for the best recipe received during the previous week. Be sure and name some advertiser where the ingredients of the recipe may be secured.

The prize-winning recipe is as follows:

Virginia Sally Lunn.

2 cups of Washington flour, plain
1 1/2 cups of milk
2 eggs
2 tablespoons sugar
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon grated nutmeg
2 tablespoons melted shortening
4 level teaspoons baking powder
Mix the flour, salt, sugar and nutmeg. Add the milk and stir until smooth. Add the well beaten eggs, then the melted shortening, last the baking powder. Pour into a well-greased tube pan and bake 30 minutes in a moderate oven. Serve hot as a bread for dinner with plenty of butter.

Housewives May Save Money by Working Out Skeleton Menu for Week; Many Good-Quality Vegetables Available; Chuck Roast Inexpensive.

By Hoyt Barnett.

Housewives have an opportunity to approach the problem of "what food to buy today" with the attitude of a professional purchasing agent working for a corporation.

Unless a woman is taking this attitude she will not be getting for her family the greatest possible food values for her food dollars.

For example, on Saturday, when a wide variety of produce is featured in retail stores and in public market for her convenience, she can afford to spend several hours working out a skeleton menu for the coming week.

Any one wishing assistance in developing such a menu may secure, without cost, a food memorandum for the following week by writing a letter to the Family Marketer, The Washington Post.

Peaches and Cantaloupes Good.

In view of the fact that both peaches and cantaloupes are of good quality and relatively inexpensive, serve them several times during the coming week. They are good either for breakfast or as dessert at dinner.

Beans, both string and lima, are selling at extremely low prices. It is the same way with corn.

In the meat lines, veal is inexpensive. If cool weather continues through today, buy a good-sized chuck roast. Not only will such a roast be good for Sunday, but an ingenious woman can plan ways to utilize left-over portions at subsequent meals.

While on the subject of chuck roast, it should be mentioned that it takes no more work to roast a 5 or 6 pound piece of meat than a smaller cut. And as far as chuck roast is concerned, it is one of the less expensive pieces of beef and at the same time one of the best from a nutritive standpoint.

Other Meats Available.

Other economical cuts of meat are boneless shoulder roast of lamb, boneless breast of veal and leg of lamb.

Lamb chops, although somewhat a warm evening and are easily prepared. The quality of lamb chops now being sold here is very good.

There is a good supply of poultry available to the week-end shopper. Friers are selling from 25 to 30 cents a pound, depending upon quality. Broilers are the same price.

Peaches Just "Fair."

Retail merchants here say the best of the Virginia peach crop is being shipped North, where higher prices are being paid. The housewives shouldn't let this worry them.

Some Elbertas are selling in the public markets at 5 cents a pound. Others sell at $2 a bushel. About 20 quarts may be canned from a bushel of this size. Figure it out for yourself.

Some Bartlett pears are coming in from California. Within a few weeks shipments will be in from Medford, Oregon.

Meat Food Prices.

Butter—Prints, 21 to 23 cents; tubs, 29 to 31 cents.

Poultry—Broilers, 25 to 30 cents; fryers, 28 to 30 cents per lb.; young baking chickens, 28 to 30 cents per lb.; heavy hens, 25 to 28 cents per lb.; medium, 24 to 26 cents per lb.; old, 23 to 25 cents per lb.

Fish—10 to 14 cents per lb.

Peanuts, 15 to 20 cents per 2 1/2-lb. bag.

Cantaloupes, 10 cents each.

FLORIDA, 10 cents per lb.

Walt Mason, Himself

Adversity. In recent years, has filled the world with briny tears, yet people wipe the tears away, and make an effort to be gay. They have endured the bitter test with dauntless courage of the best. "It doesn't help us much," they sigh, "when we have kissed our rolls good-bye, to stand about our ravaged coops and send up sad and mournful whoops. Our heavy grief it won't efface to gather in the market place and wring our hands and rend our hair, and show new curves in black despair." I've seen the old man, newly poor, who'd thought his savings were secure, and only found a yawning hole where he had placed his hard-earned roll; and he had good excuse to mourn, and talk of heartstrings rudely torn; he was too old and tired and weak, another helpful roll to seek. And still he said, with dauntless grin, "A man must take it on the chin; I reached this world without a dime, and broke I'll leave it, in due time; but I can't feel oppressed and sad, when thinking of the fun I've had." Adversity, that deadly bore, has knocked at nearly every door; few have escaped that summons dread, and yet men walk with sprightly tread, and show some remnants of a smile, and seem to think this life worth while.

New Yorker Today

By Mark Barron. New York—George Gershwin, affable and hospitable, is in seclusion these afternoons. With the aid of brother Ira's lyrical pen, he is composing another operetta score, this one to be a sequel to his "Of Thee I Sing." The gay, musical parties which lured innumerable celebrities to his modernistic penthouse 18 floors above Riverside drive are temporarily missing. But, with the coming of winter, they'll be revived again and the great and near great will trek there to persuade the ever-willing George to sit at the concert piano and play his compositions. Gershwin, now only 35, is one of the youngest of the musical great. He was only 24 when he turned out, in little more than three weeks, his "Rhapsody in Blue." He sketched out most of it while commuting between Boston and New York, the clack-clack of the train wheels serving as a sort of stimulus to his rhythmic imagination.

Not Introduced. Hale Norcross, monologist, was considerably nonplussed when he started a tour of Australia. Opening in Melbourne, his repertoire of gags and jokes didn't lure a single laugh from the audience. Coming off stage he approached the local manager, "What's the matter?" he asked. "I didn't get a laugh. Aren't my gags all right?" "Aye, the gags are a bit of al-rightly," soothed the manager. "But, we've never heard 'em before."

Clever Fellow. On the night that Paul Whiteman was to play the "Rhapsody" for the first time, several of the piano interludes had not yet been worked out. But Gershwin himself was to be at the piano, and when he came to these passages he merely improvised the missing notes.

He works in a sound-proof room, never rising until noon and doing most of his composing in those hours just before dusk. He has turned out as many as four popular songs in one afternoon.

He is an exercise enthusiast, and works out daily in his private gymnasium. He is an irrepressible painter and sketcher, and occasionally tries a whisp of writing. His parents are both Russian, but he was born in Brooklyn.

He has made a great deal of money since he wrote his first published song at 19, a ditty called "When You Want 'Em, You Can't Get 'Em; When You've Got 'Em, You Don't Want 'Em." The movies are reputed to have paid $50,000 to use "Rhapsody in Blue" in one film.

Although he wrote a symphony about Paris, his favorite city is New York. His greatest ambition is to write an opera "of the melting pot of New York City itself, which is the symbolic and actual blend of the native and immigrant strains."

How to Keep Well

By Dr. W. A. Evans. ONE of the leading baby doctors of Great Britain considers napkin rash sufficiently important to tell other physicians his experience with it and to advise them how to prevent it. While this is not a serious form of disturbance in that it threatens life or even endangers health, it is a source of discomfort to the baby, and this spells discomfort for the mother.

In this article the distinguished physician makes no reference to rubber diapers. There are a few occasions when it may seem necessary for a baby to wear a rubber diaper, but they are few in number and probably should not be allowed to arise. If a mother is to take her baby away from home and among strangers she may think to have him wear a rubber diaper may prevent some embarrassing moments. But it is better by far for the baby to stay at home and to be kept away from strangers. There is a book on the subject, "How to Travel With a Baby." It ends with a summarized statement to the effect that a baby's place is at home and it is best not to have him travel.

The best single method of preventing napkin rash is to have the baby go without a napkin. This requires some training. There are babies that are trained to get along without napkins before they are 3 months old.

As a measure of relief he advocates free use of a good dusting powder. Some use a solution of tannic acid in alcohol, one dram of the powder to each ounce of alcohol. Others use witch hazel cream.

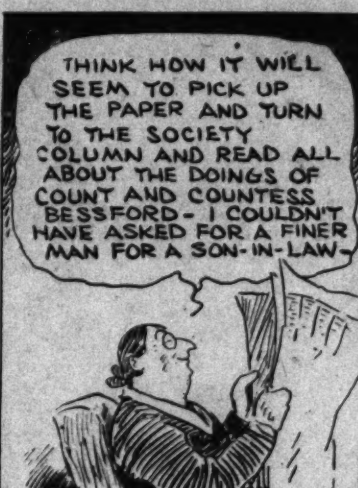

In many cases the napkin is left off for a few days or until the rash can heal.

Prisoner Tells Court 2 Men With Gun Forced Him to Consume Liquor.

There is no alternative but to get drunk when two men seize you, drag you up an alley and there press a pistol against your head and tell you to drink a bottle of liquor. Uniform Code For Copper Is Aim of Officials

(Associated Press.)

One code for the producing divisions of the copper industry was the aim of Recovery Administration officials yesterday as they went through preliminary discussions with leaders of the business, seeking to formulate a trade-practice plan. H. O. King, Deputy Recovery Administrator in charge of the copper question for NRA, advised newspapermen that the customs melting section of the production end had submitted a code.

He said its wage-and-hour provisions were in accord with the blanket code, but declined to make known the details.

The primary mining producers of copper, in which class are about 10 companies, conferred among themselves and with King in working out tentative plans for a trade program.

NRA officials said the copper mining division had few difficulties to compose between interests but that they were confronted with several serious problems peculiar to the industry as a whole and that a plan for solving these was being sought.

These problems were represented as first, severe competition from the high-grade copper ore fields of South Africa where labor is cheap; and second, overproduction in recent years by domestic operators with consequent heavy stocks.

Indications were that producers might ask price fixing to help them stabilize their value levels.

King said that his aim in working with the copper producers was to formulate one code for the whole producing industry, which might possibly be divided into two branches, one for the melting sections and the other for the mining producers.

Tobacco Price Aid in Georgia Is Facing Delay

U. S. Experts Say Growers
Must Arrange Crop
Curb in 1934.

(Associated Press.)
Despite all the talk in Georgia, nothing is going to be done about the tobacco situation this year, say Federal experts.

The Department of Agriculture is authority for the information that manufacturers are not going to be subjected to any marketing agreement calling for higher prices for growers on this year's crop, but that if farmers want to control production after the manner of cotton producers the agricultural adjustment administration will assist in working out a domestic allotment scheme such as is to be offered to wheat growers on their 1934 harvest.

Some such agreement was entered into in June with the producers of cigar leaf tobacco but the flue-cured or pipe and cigarette tobacco growers now protesting an average price of 13 cents a pound gross have a crop 65 per cent larger than last year.

Factions in Georgia.

The department says there are two tobacco factions in Georgia—one apparently satisfied with current prices and the other insisting farmers would have to get 20 cents a pound to realize production costs.
In a telegram to President Roosevelt saying it would take "strong arm" methods to make tobacco manufacturers do the right thing for the farmers, Gov. Eugene Talmadge of Georgia said tobacco products were selling at the same price as when farmers were being paid 50 to 75 cents a pound.

He charged that five leading companies had a "monopoly" on tobacco and had "made millions" even during the time of the depression.
Present prices in Georgia markets are about the same as a year ago on medium to good grades and better than last year on low grade tobacco. The tobacco division of the Department of Agriculture says it has been informed by representatives of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics that current tobacco prices are "fair."

The Georgia markets opened on August 1 and the department has had almost daily complaints against prices since. The markets run only 20 days on Georgia fluecured and it is estimated that the bulk of the crop has been sold.

Due to the limited marketing period and the fact that 40 to 60 per cent of the Nation's flue-cured tobacco is sold for the Agricultural Adjustment Administration is said to be faced with an almost impossible situation so far as stimulating prices on the current crop is concerned. Officials say there is no way at present to control the foreign price of domestic tobacco and that the export market really is making the price in Georgia.

Study of Conditions.

a study of conditions in the flue-cured area with a view to assisting growers in controlling production, and has been told by manufacturers of cigarettes that they will go as far as possible with any plan to bring the American supply in line with demand. They are said to be counting on some kind of acreage control plan next year.

Meantime cigarette manufacturers have submitted a labor code to the National Industrial Recovery Administration concerning wages and hours of employment, and when discussions are completed they are to confer with officials of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

It was said at the department that a conference with manufacturers was expected to be held this week.
The tobacco industry, America's oldest agricultural enterprise, has written a romantic page in the Nation's economic history ever since the early colonists used the product as legal tender. Tobacco is about the only truly native American crop and was introduced to Europe when English friends of the slave-keeping Sir Walter Raleigh first held his clouds of smoke and were convinced that somewhere in the "New World" he had met and mastered the magic of the devil.

Output of Tobacco Is Larger in 1933

(Associated Press.)

Tobacco production this year, as indicated by the August 1 canvass of the Department of Agriculture, was announced yesterday for the principal producing States. The country's total indicated crop is 299,150,000 pounds and the condition on August 1 was 68.3 per cent of a normal. Last year's crop was 205,512,000 pounds, and the August condition 56.9 per cent.

The condition of the crop and the indicated production August 1 by States follows:

State	Condition	Production
Virginia	73 per cent	7,510,000 pounds
North Carolina	73 per cent	4,700,000 pounds
South Carolina	73 per cent	7,100,000 pounds
Georgia	73 per cent	1,850,000 pounds
Florida	73 per cent	82 and 5,100,000 pounds
Kentucky	73 per cent	60 and 3,000,000 pounds
Tennessee	73 per cent	64 and 1,200,000 pounds
Mississippi	73 per cent	75 and 128,000 pounds

Nats Score Six in Ninth to Trim Red Sox, 8-4, Gain on Idle Yanks

Sarazen and Farrell Will Clash in P. G. A. Semifinal Match Today

This Morning

With Shirley L. Fovich.

Boston, Aug. 11. THIS department is now aware of growing suspicions that the Washington ball club of J. Francis Cronin has what it takes, or words to that effect. That six-run rally in the ninth today that engulfed the Red Sox and salvaged a victory out of a very depressing situation was inspiring to watch. The same old Red Sox, said the Boston fans. Yeah, but it's a different Washington club. Joe Cronin has galvanized the 1933 Nats into a powerful machine dominated by his own insatiable hustle. There's been plenty of evidence in the past week. That double-barreled defeat by the Yankees last Monday might have been cause for the ordinary club to curl up. Not the Nats. They went out and won four straight ball games.

Used Hurler Strategy. Success finally rewarded Cronin today with a victory over the Red Sox after one of the most prolonged pieces of pitching strategy that you will see only once in a generation. Cronin wasn't jerking and inserting his six pitchers today just for the novelty of it. It was all cleverly conceived, and there you have the answer to a large degree of the Nats' success.

It may not be realized at first sight of the box score that despite the fact that Al Crowder was the fifth of Cronin's pitchers when the eighth opened, Boston had scored only three runs, one to an inning. Cronin's pitchers weren't being hammered. They were simply being manipulated by their young boss.

He got Al Thomas out of there for a pinch hitter in the sixth. He sent the left-handed Burke in to pitch to 3 left-handers coming up for the Sox, and then, with two on base, he pitched Burke to permit the right-handed Jack Russell to pitch to the right-handed Marty McManus with 3 on.

Makes Other Shifts. And then when Russell got in trouble in the seventh, with the left-handed Roy Johnson coming up with the bases full, Cronin replaced him with the left-handed Walter Stewart, and again the Sox saw three men perish on bases for the second consecutive inning.

With a flock of right-handers due to bat for Boston and the eighth, Cronin replaced Stewart with the right-handed General Crowder, and that the Sox scored a run was due only to Crowder's own error of judgment on a bunt.

Lastly came Cronin's strategy in the ninth. Cronin, occupying the third place and cleanup position in the Sox batting order, were due to hit first. Cronin met this situation by calling in Earl Whitehill to pitch to the two left-handers. It was his fifth change of pitchers, and for the fifth time he had picked the right man. You've got to hand it to a guy like that.

Runs, Hits and Errors.

After the Nats scored those six runs in the ninth, the only danger they faced was that a snowstorm would break up the ball game. . . . It was great weather for the Eskimos today. . . . When Schulte got that double that won the ball game in the ninth, Cronin slapped him on the back and pumped his hand until Schulte held his arm in pain. . . . The Nats looked like they were leaving the ball game on the bases in the early innings when they had seven men left between the fourth and the eighth. . . . That ninth inning that Whitehill pitched served as a warmup for duty in the last of the series tomorrow. . . . And there was also the spectacle of a pinch-hitter coming up twice in the same inning when Sammy Rice got two turns at bat in that hectic ninth. . . . Stewart and Weaver were shipped back to Washington tonight to prepare their arms for the Sunday game with the Yanks.

Silva and Erana Win Way to Tennis Final

Felix Silva and Mariane Erana advanced to the final in the Veterans' Administration tennis tournament yesterday by eliminating Harold Weiss and Clifford Johnson in the semifinal matches played on the Henry Park courts. Silva defeated Weiss, 6-4, 1-6, 6-4, and Erana sailed through his opposition, 6-3, 6-1.

They will meet for the title on the Henry Park courts at 3 p. m. today. It will be a rubber contest, Silva having gained possession of the Welfare Association trophy in 1929 and 1932, and Erana in 1930 and 1931.

Are Easy Victors Over Creavy and Runyan at Milwaukee.

B LUE Mound Club, Milwaukee, Aug. 11 (AP)—Gene Sarazen and Johnny Farrell marched into the semi-finals of the National Professional Golf championship with impressive victories today, but a pair of comparative unknowns to big-time competition dealt upsets that stole the show.

Sarazen regained his magical putting touch in the afternoon to breeze into the semifinals with an easy 5- and 3-conquest over Ed Dudley, his Ryder-cup mate from Wilmington, Del., and Farrell vanquished the stubborn Johnny Golden, of Noroton, Conn.

Beat Noted Golfers.

Jimmy Hines, of New York, and Willie Goggin, professional, of San Francisco municipal course, staggered such noted shotmakers as Tom Creavy, of Albany, N. Y., the 1931 champion, and Paul Runyan, heavy money-winner of last winter's golfing gold rush, with crushing defeats.

Playing like a Sarazen or a Bobby Jones, the two upset artists didn't give their more famous and favored rivals even a chance as they stormed over the blue mound layout with prize shots. Hines, who first gained attention by tying Mortie Dutra, of Detroit, for the qualifying medal, eliminated Creavy, 4 and 3; Goggin routed Runyan, 6 and 5.

Meet in Semifinals.

Fate of the draw will stop one of them tomorrow, however, as they clash in the semifinals of the upper bracket while Sarazen, a one-two-three favorite in lavish wagers around the clubhouse, meets Farrell, who looks like his old self for the first time since he beat Jones in the national open playoff at Olympia Fields in 1929.

Rookie to Supplant Grimm at 1st Base

Cubs Buy Adolph Camilli for $25,000; Manager to Go on Bench.

Chicago, Aug. 11 (AP)—Charley Grimm, manager of the Chicago Cubs, National League champions of 1932, from now on probably will direct the club from the bench.

The Cubs today purchased Adolph Camilli, first baseman with the Sacramento Club of the Pacific Coast League, for a reported $25,000. He was ordered to report to Manager Grimm, whose place he probably will take, on Sunday. The team leaves on its final, long Eastern invasion on Monday.

Announcement of Camilli's acquisition was made at PHS headquarters by President William L. Veck of the Cubs. Camilli, who throws and bats from the left side of the plate, was until a week ago among the leading batters of the Pacific Coast League, and although in a temporary slump, still is over the 300 mark. That is far better than Grimm's average.

Last year Camilli finished 187 games on the Coast with a mark of 308 and wound up with a fielding average of .961, committing only 18 errors in 1,977 chances. He also hit 17 homers.

Suhr's Home Run in Ninth Nets Pirates' Only Runs in 8-to-2 Contest.

P ITTSBURGH, Aug. 11 (AP)—The Chicago Cubs climbed over the almost helpless forms of Pittsburgh's Pirates into second place in the National League today, winning the belated opener of their important series, 8 to 2, behind the expert hurling of Guy Bush.

The victory put Chicago a half game up on the Bucs and 3½ behind the New York Giants, who had an open date.

Bush pitched shut-out ball up to the final inning, falling to apply the whitewash only because Gus Shur wallowed a home run into the right field stands with Pie Traynor aboard. The Cubs disposed of Larry French in five innings, driving him to cover with a five-run outburst.

Chisox Defeat Tigers, 2-0, In Duel

Lyons Outlasts Marberry; Only 7 Hits Allowed by Each Hurler.

CHICAGO, Aug. 11 (AP)—Ted Lyons, veteran White Sox knuckle-ball hurler, flashed all his old-time artistry today and shaded Fred Marberry in a fine hurlers' duel, giving the Chicagoans their second straight victory over the Detroit Tigers, 2 to 0.

Lyons yielded seven hits, the same number allowed by Marberry, but scattered them so effectively that after the first inning only one enemy got as far as second base.

A brisk Detroit defense turned in five double plays, to equal the American League record. Marberry weakened with one out in the seventh and Luke Appling cracked a double to left, scoring a moment later as Jimmy Dykes tripled to deep right center. Dykes then scored on a single by Hal Rhyne.

Mangan in Two Finals in Midatlantic Coast Net Play

District Star In Singles, Doubles

Goeltz Semifinal Victim, 6-3, 8-10, 6-3, in Feature Match.

Mangan-Goeltz Pair in Doubles to Advance to Final Round.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 11 (Sp.).—While a large crowd shivered beneath threatening skies, Thomas Mangan, Jr., of Washington, D. C., defeated Frank Goeltz, Scranton City champion and seeded No. 3, in the semifinals of the Middle States Coast Men's singles tennis championship this afternoon on the Ventnor Municipal Courts, 6-3, 8-10, 6-3. Simultaneously Fred Roll, captain-elect of the University of Pennsylvania, and seeded second, defeated W. Gliding McMullin, a member of the Philadelphia Rifle Club. No seeded player, 6-7, 6-0, 6-3, for the right to meet Mangan in the finals at 2 p. m. tomorrow.

The Mangan-Goeltz match was easily the outstanding one of the tournament. In the first set, Mangan, who is 40 years old, had Goeltz constantly on the defensive.

Mangan Uses Head. Playing very steadily, Mangan, whose brain works trigger fashion on the court, hugged the base line for long rallies, pulling his opponent out of position to put over placement that netted him a point practically every time.

With the game score 1 up, the contest settled down to a battle of wits and here Mangan's 20 years' experience stood him in good stead. Rarely did his placement shots go astray and although Goeltz covered the court in beautiful fashion, he failed to stand up under the older man's driving. Although the match ended at 6-3, it was far closer than the score would indicate, with several of the games going to deuce.

Mangan and Goeltz are playing in the doubles final against Fred Roll and John Dillard, University of North Carolina.

D. C. Printers Lose Typo Baseball Title

8 Errors Help New York Nine Win, 14-4; Crown Copped by Detroit.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 11 (Sp.).—Washington was forced to relinquish its International Union Printers baseball title, which it had held in 4 of the past 11 years, when it bowed to New York, 14-4, at Navy Field today. The Detroit team beat New York in the final game for the championship, 11 to 10, in 11 innings.

Eight errors by the Washington infield, combined with 13 New York safeties on the pitchers, brought defeat for the printers from the Capital. In the first inning New York scored three runs on a walk, hit batsman and three misplays by the infield.

Washington's pitcher, Ed Hahn, was hit by a line drive from New York's George B. Smith in the first inning. Hahn was hit again in the second inning by a line drive from New York's George B. Smith. Hahn was hit a third time in the third inning by a line drive from New York's George B. Smith.

Reed vs. Bowen On Twin City Program

Romano-Lucas, Belt-Parks Bouts Also Added to Tuesday's Card.

THE complete supporting card for the Sarron-Bull battle to be committed Tuesday night at Twin City arena will show the last night by matchmaker Charles Cornell. The main event will be a 10-rounder, preceded by two 6-rounders and two fours.

In addition to the K. O. Brodie-Henry Irving bout announced yesterday, Cornell has signed Jimmy Reed for the second set, with Ray Bowen as the gentleman in the opposite corner. Sammy Romano and Sammy Lucas are listed for a four, as are Jessie Belt and Al Parks.

As cocky as ever, Reed honestly believes he will steal the show with his antics. In his opinion, trimming Bowen will be a very simple matter. Jimmy won a easy decision over the Mohawk Club sharpshooter at Portner's Arena last winter, knocking him down twice, although he clowned throughout the match.

McLarnin Sought For Fight in Fall

Bout With Andy Callahan or Lou Brouillard Is Aim in Boston.

Boston, Aug. 11 (U.P.).—Boston promoters today were vying to sign Jimmy McLarnin, of Vancouver, world welterweight champion, for an early fall bout here, with either Andy Callahan, of Lawrence, New England welterweight champion, or Lou Brouillard, new middleweight king.

Promoter Dick Dunn said he had telegraphed McLarnin's manager, Charles (Pop) Foster, an offer to have his fighter meet Callahan at Braves' Field late in September. Johnny Buckley, Callahan's manager, said the Lawrence boxer had agreed to terms.

Meanwhile, Matchmaker Billy Ames, of Boston Garden, was negotiating for an opponent for Brouillard, who won the middleweight title from Ben Jey in New York this week. Though Ames did not name McLarnin, it was known he was desirous of signing the Canadian.

Mako to Play Budge For Junior Net Title

—By Robert Edgren

Culver, Ind., Aug. 11 (U.P.).—California youngsters will fight it out here between themselves tomorrow for three of the four junior and boys' tennis championships of the United States.

Gene Mako, brilliant Los Angeles shotmaker, will play Donald Budge, Oakland, for the junior singles title, and Robert Harmon, Oakland, will cross rackets with Robert Riggs, Los Angeles, for the boys' crown.

Mako and Ben Dey, a fellow townsman, then take on Budge and William Seward, Beverly Hills, for the national junior doubles championship. Harmon and Riggs will team to try to beat the Chicago duo, Arthur Jorgensen and Charles Shostrom, for the boys' doubles honors.

Capital Women Defeated in Doubles

Mrs. Stone, Miss Walker Once Within Two Points of Being Finalists.

NEW YORK, Aug. 11 (Sp.).—Mrs. Charles P. Stone and Miss Frances Walker, seeded No. 3, Washington's representatives in the women's doubles competition in the national public parks tennis championships, were within two points of capturing the deciding game in the third set of their semifinal match here today with Miss Edna Smith and Miss Marion Craig, of Cleveland, seeded No. 2, but failed to clinch the issue and lost after three grueling sets.

The final scores of the match, played indoors on the special one-cent court of the exclusive court house because of yesterday's rain, were 6-3, 4-6, 8-6.

In the crucial third set, Washington broke service with the count at 2-11 to run the score to 4-2. Cleveland took their next service game and then through to even it at 4-4. Both teams took next service games, and Washington once again broke through at 6-5. It was in the next game that Mrs. Stone and Miss Walker were within two points of being finalists in the tournament.

With the score 30-40 the Clevelanders, playing desperately, literally swept the Washington pair off their feet. After snatching the match from the fire, Cleveland went on to take the next two games and the match from the Washington duo.

Coed to Battle Miss Van Wie Sarazen and Farrell In Links Tilt Today

CHICAGO, Aug. 11 (U.P.).—A 22-year-old Iowa coed, Miss Lucille Robinson, of Des Moines, will meet Miss Virginia Van Wie, of Chicago, national women's champion, tomorrow in a 36-hole match for the women's Western golf championship.

After five days of spectacular golf, which saw the downfall of Mrs. Opal S. Hill, of Kansas City, the defending champion, Miss Van Wie and Miss Robinson proved their superiority over the field and entered the finals by winning their matches today. Miss Van Wie defeated Miss Elizabeth Abbott, of Los Angeles, 6 and 5, while Miss Robinson conquered Mrs. Gregg Lufur, also of Los Angeles, 2 up.

Nats Rally in Ninth To Down Red Sox

Continued from Page 15. Four shots under par. Shooting perfect golf on the front morning nine, he sailed to a two up lead over Dudley as the big fellow from Wilmington missed his approach shot, excepting the afternoon. Dudley, four from each hole, taking the lead, 31 over par, to Dudley's 35.

Dissatisfied with his putting, Gene first decided to change putter at noon, but changed his mind. His putter delivered in brilliant fashion in the afternoon. Dudley, matching him hole for hole with a fast 32, 3 under par, on the first nine of the afternoon, collapsed suddenly on the final home stretch and Gene broke par with one of his typical finishes to win the match, 3 and 2.

Dudley laid him three dead stymies on the front afternoon nine, or Gene probably would have ended with a still greater margin.

round 1 up by breaking the deadlock on the nineteenth hole. After halving the nineteenth with par 4, Johnny drew away to win the next three holes and soar 4 up, a margin he increased by winning the twenty-seventh with a birdie, manufacturing a great approach. Dudley didn't have a chance thereafter. Farrell tying him hole for hole with 1 under par golf.

Wins First Three Holes. Goggin, a powerful hitter off the tee and a "Dead Eye Dick" with his iron, rushed Runyan off his feet by winning the first three holes of the morning with a par and two successive birdies 38. Runyan never recovered from that disarranging. Goggin was 3 up through 6 holes, 3 up through 18, 5 up through 27 and master all the way. His final hole was won on the twenty-eighth, after which he played Runyan even.

Hines' victory over Creavy wasn't so spectacular, but almost as easy. Farrell, out. AW, PLE-EZE TELL US WHAT HAPPENED AFTER TH' CAT BEGINS TO GROWL AT TH' SEA SERPENT, AN' TH' SEA SERPENT BEGINS TO SNORT AT TH' CAT

And That's What Happened

WELL, FINALLY TH' CAT GOT SO MAD HE DIDN'T MIND GETTIN' HIS FEET WET. SO HE STARTED RIGHT AFTER TH' SERPENT. I BEGGED HIM TO COME BACK, BUT HE WOULDN'T—AN' WHEN TH' SEA SERPENT SAW HOW MAD TH' CAT WAS, WOULD YOU BELIEVE IT, HE TURNED ROUND AND SKEDADDLED OUT TO SEA AS FAST AS HE COULD SKEDADDLE

By Edwina

AN' TH' CAT CHASED HIM CLEAN OUT OF SIGHT, AN' THAT WAS TH' LAST HEARD OF HIM FROM THAT DAY TO THIS! AN' TH' PEOPLE VOTED TH' CAT A MEDAL TO WEAR, AN' A CAN OF SALMON FOR SUPPER! AN' THAT'S ALL! NOW CO' WAY AN' LEMME ALONE!

District Legion Elects Means As Commander

W. A. Kehoe Defeats His Brother in Race for Second Place.

Winning by a margin of seven votes, former Senator Rice W. Means, of Colorado, was elected department commander of the District American Legion at the conclusion of its fifteenth annual convention last night in Central High School.

Means, of Victory Post, defeated Richard A. O'Brien, of Vincent Castello Post, with 55 votes against 53. William A. Kehoe, Sgt. Jasper Post, defeated his brother, James F. Kehoe, of Bureau of Engraving Post, for first vice commander. The vote was 72 to 50.

R. A. Ralph, Barker Hill Post, 67 votes, was elected second vice commander over Thomas Mason, Jr., Second Division Post, 56 votes.

Mrs. Harkins Honored.

The third vice commandery went to Mrs. Anne Harkins, Jane A. Delano Post, 73 votes, defeating Mrs. Norman B. Landrum, Cooley McCullough Post, 48 votes. The Rev. Howard E. Snyder, George Washington Post, was unopposed for chaplain.

The following were elected delegates to the national convention at Chicago in October: R. W. Means, Norman B. Landrum, Cooley McCullough Post, outgoing commander; Gen. Amos A. Fries, National Press; B. C. MacNeil, Quentin Roosevelt; William N. Morrell, Lincoln; Theodore Cogswell, Gardner; T. Edward Jones, Walker; Howard S. Fisk, George Washington; Warren E. Miller, Stewart Walcott.

These alternates were chosen: Oscar G. Jones, Victory; Mrs. Lillian Sawyer, Belleau Wood; Maurice Callahan, George E. Killen; Mrs. Nellie Rothwell, Delano; W. H. Beall, Jasper; Charles O. Shaw, George Washington; Hal K. Hodgson, De Puget; L. Bush, Lincoln; and Paul J. McGahan, National Press Club.

Opposition was voiced in resolutions to the manner in which the national economy act is being administered. The purpose of the act, it was pointed out, is to rid pension rolls of undeserved pensions and gross overpayment. However, it was charged, injustice is being done to honorably discharged disabled veterans who suffered disability in line of duty.

Injustice Is Charged.

The director of the budget and the administrator of veterans affairs were blamed for inflicting "the most serious and pitiable distress on disabled veterans," because of drastic reductions in the amount of pensions.

The National legislative committee of the department was directed to work for corrections in and liberalization of the provisions of the act at the Chicago convention. The women's auxiliary, suspended at the convention last year because of dissension, was reinstated. Through the work of Mrs. Marie Dyer, president, the women were reported working as a unit instead of in factions, as before.

The past commander badge was pinned on the lapel of Laurence's coat by Past Commander McGahan. McGahan also presented a copy to the U. S. S. Jacob Jones Post for procuring a majority of 233 jobs in an unemployment campaign this summer. The cup was given by John Arthur Shaw. Miss Lola Browning received a legion uniform for second place, and Miss Georgia Monroe a gold pin for third.

2 Fugitives, 'Body' Of Woman, Sought

Police Here Told Men Fled as Arm Was Observed in New York Car.

Washington police yesterday broadcast a lookout to Virginia and Maryland authorities for a New York car occupied by two colored men reported to have driven through Washington with the "body" of a white woman concealed on the floor.

Thomas Lee, 1610 Sixteenth street, reported to Policeman L. M. Snyder at Ninth street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest that two colored men in a car asked him the way to Chain Bridge.

While talking to the men he noticed the arm of a white woman protruding from a pile of blankets on the floor. Realizing his observation, the men threw the car in gear and almost knocked Lee down as they sped toward Constitution avenue, he said.

The lookout was sent after Snyder reported the incident to Inspector Frank S. W. Burke, chief of detectives. Lee observed only the last two numbers of the New York license plate, which he said were 74.

Man Would Annul Wild Party Marriage

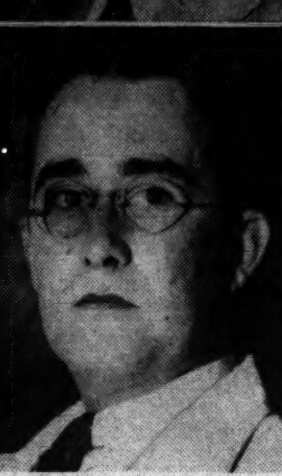

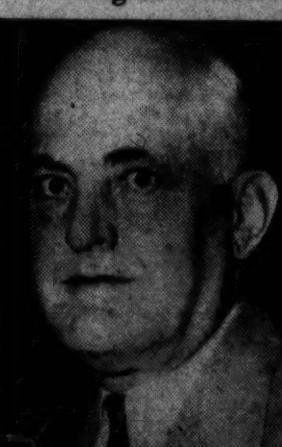

Lionel G. Angers, of Hyattsville, is seeking to have his marriage on June 25 to Margaret Costello Angers, of 4200 block, Twelfth place northeast, annulled, alleging that his "mental faculties were stupefied" on the date of the wedding. The marriage took place at Blair, Md., after an automobile ride with an unidentified friend.

Previously Angers says he had only a casual acquaintance with his bride. Following the marriage ceremony, he declares the bride was taken to her home and he went to a friend's house.

South Maryland To Be Patrolled By 2 Dry Men

New Enforcement Chief Says More Ready If Bootlegging Grows.

Dry operations will not lessen their tempo in Washington and southern Maryland, despite slashed personnel.

John S. Hurley, chief of the new prohibition unit of the Division of Investigation, made this plain last night in the face of recurring reports of decreased activity. Jubilation and alarm prevailed yesterday in southern Maryland, source of that dry area contraband, Maryland rye. The varied emotions quickly faded when word got around that the quota of agents was to be reduced from six to two in that area.

Mr. Hurley declared that this was partly because of effective enforcement work and because of personnel reductions. Any sign of increased illicit liquor production will bring more agents into the section, he declared.

Capital Force Intensified.

The new prohibition chieftain said there will be no withdrawals from the prohibition agent staff in Washington.

Hurley pointed to the charging of 21 men several days ago with conspiracy to violate the national dry law in the Capital.

The number of agents operating in the Capital varies with activity. It was explained last night, Headquarters for this district—which covers Maryland, Virginia, the Carolinas and West Virginia also—are in Richmond. The men are shifted about with the flow of bootlegging enterprise. It was pointed out that an agent from the Philadelphia office, in another district, directed the drive against the purported Capital alcohol ring.

400 More Operatives.

Hurley said the slash of prohibition enforcers was an admitted handicap, but he pointed out the dry forces are now augmented by the power of the Division of Investigation with its 400 operatives.

With the new plan in effect the four counties of southern Maryland, Calvert, Prince Georges, Charles and St. Marys, will be patrolled by Thomas Bailey and one assistant, B. W. Pairo.

Those to be released are Rufin A. Brantley, H. J. Pfoff, Lloyd Abbott and R. F. Droney.

Business Fear Of NRA Drive Here Assailed

Littlepage Also Raps High Price Boosts as Support in Plans Is Urged.

Confidence that the Capital will take the lead in the recovery program was expressed last night by Thomas P. Littlepage, president of the Washington Chamber of Commerce and general of the District NRA army in a radio address.

Chief needs of the campaign at present, the leader said, are to overcome the fear of the business man that the reemployment drive will unduly burden him and the fear of the buying public that it will unjustly increase prices.

"It is part of our duty," he said, "to see that selfish business men do not improperly boost prices. If anyone thinks he can use this agreement as a subterfuge for unwarranted increases in prices he will have another guess coming before the campaign is over."

Concerns or individuals faced with undue hardship if they adhere to a code will be given aid in working out their problems, he said.

"To Help, Not to Hinder."

"The general purpose is to help, not to hinder," he said. "By Labor Day," he said, "we expect to see many Blue Eagle insignia that you will see them in your dreams of prosperity."

Four hundred and thirty-nine eagles were issued yesterday at the Benjamin Franklin postoffice on Pennsylvania avenue, bringing the total to 6,000.

The local recovery drive will be launched formally next Monday. A meeting of the Recovery Board for Washington will be called next week, it was announced.

Land Owners Back Widening of Street

12 Voice Willingness to Surrender Yards for E. Capitol Job.

At least 12 property owners along East Capitol street don't mind giving up 11 feet of their front yards to widen the street, H. P. Caern, secretary of the Fine Arts Commission, said this morning after written in approving the plan of widening East Capitol street to 72 feet.

Improvement of the street will mean that an 11-foot strip will be taken from each of the front lawns. Incidentally, the property holders won't be paid for this because it already belongs to the government. While the street itself is only 50 feet wide, the government owns a right-of-way 160 feet wide.

At Meeting in Northeast

The national recovery plan will be explained to merchants and citizens of the Brookland-Woodridge area at a mass meeting at 8 p. m. Monday in the Shorwood Presbyterian Hall, Twenty-second street, Rhode Island avenue northeast.

Thomas S. Jackson will be the speaker. Music will be furnished by the National Training School Band.

For 40 years' service, Assistant Secretary of State Wilbur J. Carr yesterday received a volume bearing autographs of 1,300 foreign service colleagues. Suits Challenge Federal Fixing Of Milk Prices

Two Illinois Retailers File Cases Here Against U. S. Licensing Law.

Two suits attacking as "unconstitutional" the act of Congress under which the Secretary of Agriculture issues licenses for the sale of milk and cream were filed yesterday in District Supreme Court.

The court was asked by two Illinois retail dairy products firms to restrain Secretary Henry A. Wallace from enforcing the statute and to declare it null and void.

Wallace Ordered to Appear.

Justice Joseph W. Cox ruled that Secretary Wallace should appear by August 21 and show cause why the restraining order should not be issued.

The plaintiffs are Milton R. Beck, of Stickney, Ill., and the Economy Dairy Co., of Norwood Park Township. Both companies sell their products at their place of business and having no delivery costs, can sell at lower prices.

Oppose Price Fixing.

The firms contend that Congress has no authority to enable the Secretary to fix prices, that the price fixing deprives them of liberty, property and means of livelihood without due process of law, and that it makes it a criminal offense to sell milk at prices satisfactory to consumers and producers.

They claim they formerly sold milk at 4 1/2 cents per quart. The new statute fixes the price at 10 cents. The law also declares that wholesalers must charge 7 1/2 cents per quart and producers 3 1/2 cents per quart.

The plaintiffs are represented by Neil Burkhardt and Nugent Dadds, both special assistants to the Attorney General during the Hoover administration.

Taxpayers Here Urge Drastic Expense Cuts

A return to the 1925 level of municipal expenditures was urged upon the District Commissioners yesterday by the Washington Taxpayers' Protective Association.

Pointing out the recent reduction in the tax rate from $1.70 to $1.50 was made possible partly because of the existing 15 per cent pay cut and the temporary discontinuance of automatic pay increases for firemen, police, and teachers, the league asked that the 1933 budget be cut to the bone. The league also recalled that municipal expenses increased 28 per cent between 1925 and 1933, although the District population gained but 6 per cent.

Burglars, who sawed their way through bars in a grocery store window at 1728 Columbia road northwest, stole cash and cigarettes valued at $84, James E. Moreland, store manager, reported to police.

$229,977 U. S. Relief Given South Carolina

(Associated Press.) A grant of $229,977 to South Carolina for unemployment relief was announced yesterday by the Federal Emergency Relief Administration.

The allotment brought that State's total received from the Federal fund to $1,874,435. It was in reimbursement of one-third of money spent by the State in the second quarter.

Public Works Project Is Sought as $22,761,500 List Is Found

Another large public works project for the District was proposed yesterday while the Commissioners were checking on reports that its original list of items, totaling $22,761,500, had been lost by the Public Works Administration.

The new project, which will be submitted today, is a National Guard armory. Should the Federal Government furnish the money, the Commissioners would build it on public property for an estimated cost of $2,500,000.

Maj. P. A. Hodgson, Assistant Engineer Commissioner and liaison officer between the Commissioners and the Public Works Administration, yesterday afternoon assured the District heads that the original report had been found.

Earlier the Commissioners were disturbed by published reports that Secretary Ickes, public works administrator, had stated that no list of proposed public works had been received from the District. He has supported in this statement by Col. Henry N. Waite, deputy administrator.

The list was submitted June 27, and within recent weeks District officials have discussed the projects with Col. Waite.

Building Pay Tilt Adjustment Waits

The Navy Department's dispute with organized labor over the 16-2-3 per cent pay cut involved in its five-day week order is not before the National Recovery Administration's new labor conciliation committee and is not likely to be.

This information was disclosed last night by members of the committee, following Secretary of the Navy Swanson's intimation he was willing to leave the whole disagreement up to the new NRA tribunal for settlement.

Officials of the committee said the case had not been presented to them, and they had no intention of trying to intervene.

Demand Reiterated.

Representatives of the International Association of Machinists, speaking for affected Navy Yard workers, reiterated their demand for complete restoration of pay scales, and made ready to press their petition at the White House immediately on return of the President from Hyde Park.

N. P. Alt, president of District 44, of the International Association of Machinists, insisted the Navy Yard can afford to pay its old rates if it does not approve allotment of $2,300,000 from current appropriations to finance construction of four destroyers and work on one cruiser at private yards.

Yesterday's ruling of Comptroller General McCall that hours of work of prison labor may not be reduced without proportionate cuts in pay, because Federal workers are not subject to provisions of the national recovery act, was in line with the Navy's earlier action in reducing salaries of Navy Yard help up on a five-day week.

Labor officials held up the ruling, however, as a legal argument against attempting to apply provisions of the shipbuilders' code to Navy yards, now under consideration.

Response to Cummings.

It was argued that wage standards in Navy yards should not be placed on a par with private yards, as the work generally was of a higher type and living costs on a higher plane.

General McCall's decision was in response to a letter from Attorney General Cummings asking what policy should be followed in pricing factories where labor is being placed on a five-day week.

Employees of the United States Shipping Board and the Merchant Fleet Corporation, now the Shipping Board Bureau of the Commerce Department, yesterday were guaranteed possession of their jobs until September 30, under an executive order postponing separations. This action was forecast in Thursday's Post.

Range Loses Boy Who Ran Away to Beach in Virginia

Cowboy Only Reached Beach in Virginia.

George McGowan, 12 years old, of 8807 Sixteenth street northwest, who yearned for the great open spaces and the life of a cowboy, was back home today. His journey to the land of the buffalo and rearing took him only as far as the Virginia shore.

George left home Monday with a cashbox containing insurance papers and $23. Keeping the money, he dumped the box and papers in Rock Creek, and found a home on the range at Sandy Beach.
